Money and Guns

A Rockefeller Million

To Boycott Italy

Pushing a Beer Bill

— By Arthur Brisbane —

TWO THINGS are powerful in this country, money and sawed-off shotguns and other paraphernalia of the gangster.

Mr. Thaw escaped easily from the Matteawan Hospital for the Criminally Insane some time ago. He had money.

Yesterday from the same hospital escaped six supposed maniacs, some of them convicted murderers. Three gunmen released them, defying the State, overpowering the guards.

John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., each give $500,000 to help the unemployment problem, in New York, where they live.

A generous gift, it is nothing to the hundreds of millions that the Rockefellers give to fight disease, and encourage eduction and science all over the world.

Including the Rockefeller $1,000,000, rich New York has raised in all a little over $4,000,000.

If there are, as Mr. Green of the American Federation of Labor says, 4,800,000 out of work, then $4,000,000 won't go far. This country gave ten thousand millions to foreign nations, fighting.

War is exciting. Poverty and misery are not exciting or interesting.

No wonder the Communist, perched on his soap box, says: "I can attract more attention by throwing a stone through a Fifth ave. window than you would by starving to death."

It is suggested that Mussolini may be compelled to take the advice of the big three concerning Italy's navy, etc., by cutting off her credit. The big three as you know are France, Great Britain and the United States.

If they arrange, as suggested, to refuse all loans to Italy, Mussolini might find it difficult to survive.

On the other hand, something might happen that would hurt the feelings of the big three considerably more than Mussolini's Italy has ever hurt them.

With Mussolini down, chaos, followed by anarchy, and disagreeable consequences, might develop.

The big three should know that one Russia in Europe is enough at a time.

Wet congressmen have a beer bill, and will push it, but, outnumbered nearly three to one by drys, they probably will not push it far. However, "Ain't it a good offer?" as Mr. Fields said to Mr. Weber, when he hadn't a dollar, and bid $5000 for a dog.

Wet members might arouse interest by scattering about the House pictures of a veteran British athlete, nearing three score and ten, famous, who has recently traveled from London to Burton on Trent, the great beer center, 153 miles, drinking nothing but beer on the way. You could not do that on whiskey, although you might do it on ice water if you did not drink too much.

Mr. Dewart, who owns the New York Sun, thinks this country should not be pitchforked into the League of Nations, through the back door of the World Court, and wisely decides to let the people know about it.

He will put his views into a page advertisement, to be printed in 100 newspapers, at his expense.

The next best thing to owning newspapers all over the country is to advertise in newspapers all over the country.

Food riots in Germany aggravate the government's difficulties. Even the Allies may ask themselves eventually how long a nation will continue to pay hundreds of millions a year in gold, for a war that ended 12 years ago, when the nation's own people haven't enough to eat.

Other countries may have serious food troubles such as they have in Germany. We shall have no riots, probably, because we need not have them.

Three things men must have, food, shelter, heat. There are plenty of buildings for shelter, and one of our national troubles is TOO MUCH coal and oil. No trouble about heat.

Another of our problems is how to get rid of surplus food. The government is holding about 90,000,000 bushels of wheat, wondering what to do with it. Men could live on boiled wheat, if they had to. Roman soldiers ate it raw, carrying it in a pouch at their belts on long marches. Hence the magnificently even teeth in old Roman skulls.

There can be no excuse for food riots, or any undeserved hunger in this country.

Congress considers forbidding all immigration into the United States for five years. The fear

SOVIET WAR WARNING AT PLOT TRIAL

Prosecutor Accuses Poincare of Being Hand in Glove With Rebels

Moscow, Dec. 5 (AP)—The name of Raymond Poincare, the French statesman, was shouted again today in the courtroom where eight men are on trial for plotting to overthrow the Soviet government.

Before the judges who have ruled out all mention of "friendly foreign powers," Krilenko, the prosecutor, accused the former French premier of working hand in glove with counter revolutionaries.

"If Poincare wants to know all the details of this plot, to whom he played such an important part," Krilenko shouted, "I'll let him have those details. I'll let him know that our people are ready for the worst. When the time comes to fight we will fight as one man. We will meet the crisis armed and prepared."

DEMANDS DEATHS

The prosecutor renewed his demand that the defendants be put to death, and rehearsed the confessions drawn from Leonid Ramzin, accused as the chief plotter in Russia, concerning acts of sabotage against Soviet industry.

Referring to testimony which involved officers of the French general staff whom the defendants implicated in the plot, Krilenko characterized the French denials as "pure fake."

"We have sufficient proof of their agents in Moscow," he said, "the action of the men who plotted with them is sufficient to merit the most severe punishment under our criminal code."

RIDICULES FRAMEUP

M. Krilenko ridiculed the idea that the trial was a frameup or that the evidence was false or obtained by torture and coercion.

"We don't need false documents," he said, "because we have real proof. These defendants and witnesses were arrested at various times; they belonged to different branches, yet without talking to each other they have come on the stand and confirmed the plot with statements of methods, dates and other facts. They could bring no justification for their acts."

AMES SUCCEEDS ALEX M'LEAN AT GARDEN

Change in Matchmaker Is Effected Today by Directors; It Is Reported

The Boston Evening American learned today from reliable sources that Alex McLean is no longer matchmaker at the Boston Garden, his successor being Bill Ames, for the past seven months assistant matchmaker.

It was learned that announcement to this effect will be made tonight by Mal. Patrick O'Keefe, president of Boston Garden, at a meeting with the press.

Directors of the Garden have been in session all day.

McLean succeeded Eddie Mack, who was the first matchmaker at the Garden. He held the position about a year.

Ames came to the Garden as assistant to McLean about two months ago.

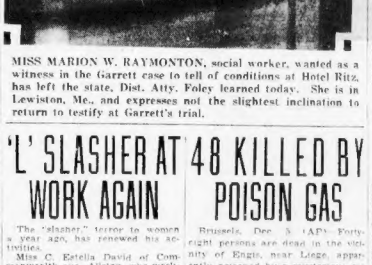
Another Witness Gone



MISS MARION W. RAYMONTON, social worker, wanted as a witness in the Garrett case to tell of conditions at Hotel Ritz, has left the state, Dist. Atty. Foley learned today. She is in Lewiston, Me., and expresses not the slightest inclination to return to testify at Garrett's trial.

NOW IN MAINE AND HAS NO DESIRE TO RETURN

Marion W. Raymonton, Social Worker, Wanted to Testify About Hotel Ritz

A second important woman witness for the government in the impending trial of Oliver B. Garrett has left the state.

She is Marion Ward Raymonton, former social worker, of Audubon rd., Back Bay.

Discovery that she was not available for the trial was made by Inspector Martin Conroy of Dist.-Atty. Foley's office today even as a search for Mildred Towle, with whom she observed liquor traffic at the old Hotel Ritz, was underway at New Orleans.

The Boston American located her in Lewiston, Me., and talked with her three over long distance telephone. She said she had no present intention of returning to be a witness for the State.

"If the District Attorney requires your presence, won't you return?" she was asked.

NOT INTERESTED IN CASE

"I could hardly answer that now," she said. "I hate to hold out any hope for him.

"I'm not interested in the slightest."

Her testimony, with that of Miss Towle, was considered highly important in the establishment of the conditions at the Ritz which Garrett is said to have protected, in conspiracy with Mrs. Garrett and Miss Lillian V. Hatch to extort large sums from John F. Sullivan, aged proprietor of the padlocked hostelry.

At about the same time he was informed Miss Raymonton, like Miss Towle, was "among the missing" Dist. Atty. Foley called for the lower court records dealing with conditions at the Ritz.

HAD BEEN IN PITTSBURGH

Miss Raymonton observed conditions at the Ritz at the same time as Miss Towle and both were witnesses at Atty. Gen. Warner's investigation of Garrett. Miss Raymonton worked for the Church Home Society.

Although it was said at her former Audubon rd. address that Miss Raymonton had moved about three months ago, she told the Boston American she had been in Pittsburgh all summer and only recently went to Lewiston.

Making his plans for the trial, which may start Dec. 15 and may start in the middle of January, Dist.-Atty. Foley called for the records of 15 banks showing deposits in excess of $122,000 to the accounts of Garrett and his wife during the days he was a public ward. They will be placed in a vault in the district-attorney's office.

Other preparations for the trial included the notifiction of 60 other witnesses to appear at the district attorney's office during the next 10 days.

With Garrett declared officially sane by State psychiatrists and the last possible barrier to his trial consequently removed, the district-attorney rushed final preparation

'L' SLASHER AT WORK AGAIN

The "slasher," terror to women a year ago, has renewed his activities.

Miss C. Estella David of Commonwealth ave., Allston, who works in the Statler Building, is the victim.

She reported to police of Lagrange st. station today that while on her way home last night her $225 fur coat was slashed on the sleeve. She did not notice it until she took it off.

Last winter there were approximately 100 complaints against the "subway slasher," mostly from women.

Norris Ditty Hits Hoover

Washington, Dec. 5 (INS)—President Hoover's penchant for appointing federal commissions to deal with various public questions has inspired Senator Norris (R.) of Nebraska to senatorial verse.

Today's Congressional Record presents this poem which the insurgent leader recited to the Senate during the debate on the administration's proposal for emergency unemployment relief:

"Once to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood,
For the good or evil side.

"But the case presents no problem
To the White House engineer
He appoints a big commission
To report some time next year."

48 KILLED BY POISON GAS

Brussels, Dec. 5 (AP)—Forty-eight persons are dead in the vicinity of Engis, near Liege, apparently poisoned by a mysterious gas mixed with a fog which swept over the region last night and today.

Cattle also have been affected by the strange malady of the mist and many have died.

Frightened and bewildered farmers today drove as many as possible of their cows and horses into warm, dry kitchens to shield them from the death outside.

One theory of the mysterious malady is that it has resulted from a leak of poison gas from some unknown source which mixed with the fog in the Meuse Valley and drifted down the air currents.

Hearst Named as "Business Adjuster"

Washington, Dec. 5—Four congressional leaders have received a letter from Francis J. Finneran, president of Democratic Club of Massachusetts, suggesting the Congress appoint former President Calvin Coolidge, Bernard M. Baruch, William Randolph Hearst, Judge Kenyon, former Gov. Lowden, and former Gov. Smith as "committee to recommend in thirty days what should be done to eliminate the present economic chaos."

The letter was addressed to Senators Robinson and Watson, Speaker Longworth and Rep. Garner.

Tunney Named for Governor's Staff

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 5—And now it will be Maj. James Joseph Tunney, aide-de-camp!

The former heavyweight champion of the world will acquire that title when Dean Wilbur L. Cross of the Yale Graduate School takes the Governor's chair at Hartford Jan. 7.

Tunney met the Governor-elect a couple of years ago when the ex-champion lectured at Yale on Shakespeare before the class conducted by Prof. William Lyon Phelps.

LONG FOR PART PAY TAX PLAN

Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long today filed a bill with the Legislature providing for the payment of taxes on the installment plan.

He gave as a reason "seemingly exhorbitant local taxes," but indicated no specific proportions of taxes to be collected, apparently being willing to allow the legislature to determine the amounts.

In his recommendation, filed with the secretary of state, the tax commissioner said in part:

"The times warrant a change in a very old practice of preventing collectors of taxes from receiving partial payments of local taxes.

"The present statute provides the collector shall accept 25 per cent payments, but the law is so worded that perhaps having once accepted 25 per cent he cannot accept any other payments.

REPORT NOT DUE SOON

"In these days of seemingly exhorbitant local taxes, it becomes difficult for people to gather sufficient money to pay the full amount at one time, and it is to be of advantage to the taxpayer if the collector can accept partial payments. This recommen-

Curley Policy to Give Poor $1,250,000 a Year

Mayor Curley revealed today that the life insurance policy he recently contracted for will eventually make available for the needy of Boston the sum of $1,250,000 a year.

He pointed out that if 10 other citizens would follow his course there would be no need of the city appropriating any more money for the relief of the poor.

The fact that Mayor Curley had taken out such a policy was exclusively printed in the Boston Evening American a few weeks ago.

TRUSTEES TO CONTROL

Today the Mayor confirms the story and revealed the details of the policy, which was issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

On his death an estate of $102,000 will be created, the income from which will be paid to his children through life. On the decease of the last of the Curley children the money will be allowed to accumulate for 125 years, at the end of which time it will amount to approximately $26,112,000, the income being $1,250,000 a year.

The fund is to be placed in the hands of trustees to be designated by Mayor Curley, who will turn over the income annually to the overseers of public welfare for the needy of Boston.

SUGGESTS HUGE SUM

Under the terms of the trust the city must continue to pay whatever sums it is accustomed to disburse for the relief of the poor, the Curley fund to be used for additional relief.

If similar provisions could be made by other citizens the mayor said the money would amount to nearly twice as much as Boston now appropriating for poor relief.

"My children have had a pretty good break," said the mayor, "and I can't worry about my grandchildren. They will get a pretty good break and they should be able to get along."

RECALL TARDIEU SAYS POINCARE

Paris, Dec. 5 (AP)—President Doumergue today called former Premier Poincare to the Elysee Palace, presumably to discuss the Cabinet crisis.

All France, friend and foe alike, looked to Poincare, "Saviour of the France," to emerge from the obscurity of ill health and a desire for rest and assume once more the government's leadership, made vacant by the resignation of Premier Andre Tardieu and his cabinet.

Poincare's attitude was believed to have been modified somewhat with the defeat of Tardieu from a positive determination not to take the reins of state to disinclination to do so.

Just prior to the vote Poincare said to friends in the Senate lobby "If my name is put forward to form a new ministry should one by necessary I shall show my doctors' certificates that it

FOLEY DEMANDS RECORDS OF $122,000 GARRETT BANK DEPOSITS

TO BE LOCKED UP FOR SAFE KEEPING

of his case, although it has not yet been assigned and may not be reached until after Jan. 1.

The possibility of delay until after the first of the year was strengthened today when the grand jury returned indictments against 11 more defendants who were jailed before Garrett and whose cases, with some 50 others, will precede his on the trial list.

Foley can be ready on a moment's notice to go to trial with the government's charges, he said, but a 30-day period will allow him to pour over the Garrett bank records and talk with all witnesses.

He notified the 15 banks in which records of Garrett deposits were found during Atty-Gen. Warner's investigation of the former liquor squad czar that he required the presence of those records at his office Monday morning.

INTERESTING FINANCE.

Their total of more than $122,000 as compared with the verdict of the mental experts that Garrett's earning capacity was $2000 a year, will prove an interesting feature of the trial.

The records called for include bank books, deposit slips, ledgers, credit slips and drafts bearing the names of Garrett and his wife or their Pine Grove Dairy Farm at Hingham, where Garrett raised his blooded cattle and race horses.

Detectives seeking Miss Towle were informed by her relatives that she is engaged in private work in New Orleans and attempts to locate here at an address there are being made.

The district attorney said he believes she will be found and, if necessary, will return to give her testimony regarding liquor traffic at the Hotel Ritz.

She left Massachusetts about three months ago, two months after Garrett's default and disappearance, notifying Dist. Atty. Foley that if he should want her he could obtain her address from relatives.

Her relatives told Special Officer Mark Conroy, who was sent to locate her, that she went to New Orleans to take a "more profitable" position, that she was ready and willing to testify at the trial as she did before the attorney-general and the grand jury that returned the Garrett indictments.

While the district attorney is anxious to communicate with her, he said he was not certain that, if located, she would be called back. Her testimony is of a corroborative nature regarding the sale of liquor at the now defunct Ritz.

TO QUIZZ STELLA FRASER.

The first witness to be interviewed before the trial by Foley or his assistants, Frederick T. Doyle and Daniel Gillen, who will prosecute, will be Stella Fraser, formerly of Rockland, who was a friend of Mrs. Garrett before "Ollie" was transferred from patrol duty in Charlestown to the liquor squad in 1922.

Another will be Francis La Croix, brother of Henry La Croix of the liquor squad. Francis La Croix was formerly employed on the Pine Grove Dairy Farm and now is manager of another Hingham milk farm.

Albert K. Eldlinger and Nicholas J. Cockinos, bail commissioner and Watch and Ward agent, respectively, who are serving time at Deer Island as a result of the old "Hotel Ritz cases," will not be called by Dist. Atty. Foley.

Whether Garrett's lawyer, Herbert T. Cahillane, will testify for the defense is undetermined. Both were brought up from Deer Island to testify at the attorney-general's hearing.

SULLIVAN NOT CALLED

The only one of the government witnesses who will not be called by the district attorney's office during the present trial preparations is Sullivan, who is under day and night police guard at his Newbury st. home. Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle has recently talked with him at the home and will probably do so again before the trial opens.

Still in Charles st. jail and in good spirits, Garrett awaits assignment of the trial that hung fire for five months when he defaulted and led police on a wild-goose chase that ended with his voluntary surrender Monday morning.

With the early filing of the report of the mental experts and the failure to assign the trial for immediate hearing there is a possibility that Callahan will ask court to remove Garrett's default and allow him freedom on bail.

No change in the status of the county's battle to collect the $6800 bail defaulted by Garrett was announced. John J. Donovan, indictment clerk in Foley's office, said he believed the money would be forthcoming through sale of the property posted and forfeited without a month.

The three bondsmen, Leopold Manfredonia, Oscar Long and Frank Anastacia have made no effort to redeem the surety with cash and Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall has not replied to the district attorney's letter requesting that Manfredonia and Long be removed as professional bondsmen unless they supply cash in place of the real estate.

BONDSMEN MAY SUE

The bondsmen are still contemplating civil action against Garrett to obtain the money.

"It is our opinion that the prisoner at the time of our examination was not suffering from any mental disease or defect," was the terse phrasing of the report, which obviated Garrett's requiring institutional care and thwarted any move to base the defense on insanity.

The report was filed by Dr. Wilfred Overholser, acting commissioner of the State Department of Mental Diseases, with the district attorney's office.

The early filing of the report on Garrett's sanity was unexpected. Up until late yesterday no comment had been made, either by the two psychiatrists, Drs. Abraham Myerson and J. V. Kelley, or Garrett's counsel, Herbert F. Callahan, about the progress of the examination.

In their report, the two psychiatrists describe Garrett as 38 years old, married, a policeman by occupation, born at Mechanics Falls, Me., and a resident of Massachusetts for 21 years.

His present address is given as 191 Lincoln st., Franklin, where the report says he has lived for six months. His nearest relative is his father, George Edward Garrett of Portsmouth, N. H.

GIVES MANSFIELD ACCIDENT

The history of his physical and mental condition reads:

"Appendicitis operation somewhere around 1922. Fracture of bone in the nose about 1925. Says his skull was fractured in automobile accident in Boston on Aug. 1, 1927. In Marshfield, several ribs broken in accident at Marshfield Fair on Aug. 25, 1929. No other serious illness. No history of any psychosis."

The report lists him as an occasional user of alcohol and a non-user of drugs. His social adaptability is said to be apparently normal.

The remainder of the report covers his employment from 1909 until Oct., 1929, when he retired from the Boston police department. He held positions in a bakery and a milk company before joining the police force in 1919. He has had no occupation since his retirement according to the report.

INSTALLMENT TAXES FAVORED

dation is for that purpose."

He said his recommendation would not hinder the scope of the commission which is studying tax revision, as it would not submit any specific recommendation this year.

Commissioner Long recommended that security corporations (investment trusts), be taxed only as individuals would be taxed under the Massachusetts income tax law.

In connection with stock rights he proposed reinstatement of the practice of his department in the administration of the income tax law in requiring that the cost of rights shall be taken as "O" and the profit from the sale of intangibles personal property be taxed at the time of sale at 3 per cent.

Discussing taxation of business corporations, Long offered a proposal permitting consideration by the Legislature for taxing of transactions now escaping through the claim they are interstate commerce taxation.

It would also permit consideration for taxation of subsidiary corporations so controlled as to prevent taxation in Massachusetts despite the conduct of a substantial business.

He also filed a bill providing, in the event of a change in the federal law, for minimum taxation of national banks doing business in Massachusetts.

GREATER COAST GUARD SOUGHT

Washington, Dec. 5—The coast guard must have more men and more ships if it is to cope successfully with the rum runner, Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant, so declared in his annual report to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today.

In the last year the guard sized 2141 vessels, a decrease of 130 compared with the preceding year, the report said.

The report added:

"Prevention of smuggling of intoxicating liquors into the United States from the sea continues to call heavily upon the service and to demand the utmost vigilance in practically every quarter.

"It will require further augmentation of men and material."

By rescuing 6,004 persons from death peril during the year, the coast guard broke all records, the report set forth it was an increase of 1,829 over 1929, the previous record year.

At the same time the organization made another new record by assisting 29,079 persons aboard vessels in distress.

"Millionaire Cop" Pleads Not Guilty

Portland, Me., Dec. 5 (AP)—John T. Berry, deputy sheriff of Rockland, known as "the millionaire cop" through inheritance of money from his mother a year ago, pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal sale of liquor today before U. S. Commissioner Gould. He was held in $100 for grand jury action. Berry is charged with selling two pints of whiskey last July to two prohibition agents and was arrested Tuesday.

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—One of the thickest fogs in years covered the Thames estuary today, halting shipping. Among the boats at a standstill were the American Merchant, the Canadair Ananias, the Orient liner Orvieto, and passenger steamers of the Thames-Dunkirk service.

London escaped very severe conditions, although during the night thieves stole 20 automobiles within an hour.

17 Families Flee in Lewiston Fire

Lewiston, Me., Dec. 5 (AP)—Seventeen families were driven from a 24-tenement house at the corner of Maple and Blake sts. by fire today.

Four alarms were sounded, calling every available piece of apparatus, reinforced by firemen and five trucks from Auburn. The four-story wooden building was owned by the Eagle Realty Co. and was valued at $50,000.

3 POLICEMEN TO FACE COURT IN ASSAULT

Youths Obtain Complaints From Court Against Officers Picked From Lineup

One Charlestown policeman was arraigned for assault and battery, and similar complaints were issued against two others today, as a result of the alleged holdup of four youths last Sunday morning in that district.

Patrolman Neil J. Henderson pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery on Francis J. Galvin of 90 Washington st., Charlestown, and his case was continued to Friday for trial.

COMPLAINTS ISSUED

Complaints were issued against Officers John J. Madden and Walter Armstrong, who will also appear in court next Friday. Madden is charged with assault and battery on Galvin and James J. Neary of 31 Union st., Charlestown. Armstrong is charged with a similar offense against Galvin, Neary, Francis M. Coyne of 16 Elm st., and Joseph Gallagher of 23 Prescott st., both Charlestown.

Complaints charging the officers with robbery, requested by Atty. William R. Scharton in behalf of the four youths, were refused.

The policemen have continued on duty, according to police custom, until definite decision by the court. The court action also will determine the nature of charges, if any, to be filed for action by a police trial board.

USED REVOLVERS.

According to the youths, the officers, whom they picked out of police lineups, came out of a doorway in plain clothes early Sunday morning in Union st., near Rutherford ave. One of the three men is said to have produced the youths with a revolver, while the other two searched their pockets. All displayed bruises.

U.S. REDS WOULD AID SOVIET IN WAR HERE

Foster Tells the Congressional Probers American Class Revolt Is Inevitable

Washington, Dec. 5—If an armed struggle develops between Soviet Russia and the United States the sympathy of the American Communists will be with the workers, William Z. Foster, twice Communist candidate for President, told the House Communist investigating committee today under cross-examination.

Foster predicted that a class struggle between communism and capitalism in the United States would eventually end in a struggle by force.

CLAIMS CAPITALISTS

"Great social changes always are brought about by force," said Foster. "But to answer the question squarely, it will be because of force precipitated by the capitalist class which has always used force against the workers.

"If there is a clash between Soviet Russia and the United States where would the allegiance of American Communists be?" asked Representative Eslick (D.) of Tennessee.

"Whenever the revolutionary crisis comes in this or any other country the allegiance of the Communist class will be to the workers of the world," replied Foster.

ADMITS BAN ON CHURCHES

"And that means Soviet Russia," said Eslick.

"It might mean the workers anywhere," replied Foster.

Asked if a member of the party who married in church would be allowed to stay in the party, Foster replied: "He would not."

Foster refused to give the names of members of the Communist Communist Central Committee.

"I'm not submitting any names to this committee, if you please. Such evidence could only be elicited for eventual use against us in police court."

7,000,000 JOBLESS.

He read a prepared statement that said there are 9,000,000 unemployed in the United States.

"Those still employed," he said, "are having their wages slashed and are being speeded up beyond human endurance."

He said Congressman Hamilton Fish's committee "is protecting" the capitalist system "against the protests of the workers."

"For the last year," he continued, "every newspaper in America has been full of cases of attacks upon workers by police. Last Monday on the steps of the Capitol police clubs and gas bombs were used freely to break up a delegation of workers coming to exercise their constitutionally guaranteed right to protest against proposed further legislation to suppress the workers."

Foster said 30 to 40 per cent of the 10,000 to 12,000 Communist Party dues-paying members in the United States are native Americans.

is that somebody might take the job of an American, or become a public charge.

Legislators should ask themselves what produced American prosperity? Was it the native Red Indian, or was it the immigrant from Europe? How many of the gentlemen who would shut out everybody in Europe are descended, more or less closely, from immigrants that came here with nothing?

When we had four million population, there was just one man in the United States able to make a dollar a day all the year round.

Now we have more than 122,000,000 population, millions of whom make five dollars a day, even ten dollars a day, and a few make several million dollars a year.

Ninety per cent of all goods produced in the United States are sold in the United States. Who buys them? They are bought by the descendants of immigrants. If we had some more immigrants, to leave descendants, wouldn't we be able to sell more goods made in America?

OWNER OF RIFLE LINKED WITH KAUFMAN CASE KNOWN TO POLICE

EMPTY SHELL WAS FOUND IN WOODS

Private Detective and Maine Sheriff, However, Disagree on the Murder Theory

Jackman, Me., Dec. 5—The owner of the exploded rifle cartridge found near the spot where Mitchell B. Kaufman, wealthy Boston manufacturer disappeared in the woods on November 5, is known, it was revealed here today.

This clue, the only one unearthed in 29 days of investigation, is likely to be the key to solution of the Kaufman mystery, it was admitted in official circles today. that is, if the body of Kaufman is found.

Joseph Gubella, private detective, investigating the case for the Kaufman family, today was confident that an arrest was near. Gubella is working on a theory of foul play.

SHERIFF HAS CARTRIDGE

Sheriff Elton L. Markham of Skowhegan, who has worked for weeks on the case, admitted today that he had the cartridge in his possession. He refused to disclose its caliber.

"I don't like to discuss this exhibit publicly at this time," said Sheriff Markham, "because I know the man who owned it and I don't think he had anything to do with the death of Kaufman.

"If the bullet from that shell killed Kaufman, it was an accident, and I don't think Kaufman was shot and buried. I did hold that theory from the outset of the hunt until last week, when I changed my mind because of a number of circumstances in the case. My theory now is that Kaufman in trailing a deer got lost and, pushing on blindly, perished.

DOUBTS CLUE'S VALUE

"But I am holding the shell for further developments. If Kaufman's body is eventually discovered it may be of prime importance. Understand, my guess now is that it has absolutely nothing to do with Kaufman's disappearance, but I am open to conviction and nobody can tell what may develop in this or any other case."

"The shell is not a recent discovery. I have had it in my possession since I found it on the trail close to the spot where Kaufman was last seen.

"I told the detective about the shell. He conferred with me in Skowhegan yesterday. He and I differ as to the importance of the shell and as to Kaufman's fate. He has his firm conviction as to foul play. He not only suspects one, but two men."

CHANGES THEORY

The sheriff was asked why and when he changed his original theory.

"Last week when I learned that in the several days before the Kaufman party notified me they had not searched the area beyond where Kaufman had been last seen," he replied.

"I learned that snow had come and gone in two days, effacing any of the missing man's tracks which it might have made in his aimless wanderings. He could have wandered five or six miles that night beyond the zone that was searched for two days.

"My theory is combatted by some who say Kaufman was experienced in the woods and had a compass and would have turned back rather than stumble away from camp. To that reply that it was dark soon after 4 o'clock in the woods. Kaufman had a flashlight which would be the only way he could follow a compass and as soon as he put the flashlight on the compass it would stop functioning accurately. That accounted for his wandering into some remote corner and perishing, where the searching parties may have overlooked."

Mrs. Thayer Accused of Buying a Witness

Worcester, Dec. 5—Attorney Frank B. Hall, for Fred B. Thayer, today accused Mrs. Jane H. Thayer of bribing Mary Maynard, a witness, with the promise of $2000 for testifying in her behalf in the Thayers' cross-action divorce hearing.

Miss Maynard denied she was promised this amount, but admitted she testified for Mrs. Thayer without a summons, and expected to be renumerated for "loafing." She was the Thayers' maid.

Under direct examination by Attorney Clarence E. Tupper the witness told how Thayer shook hands with Albert Desjardin the Sunday night before the raid in which the chauffeur was alleged to have been found with Mrs. Thayer.

Witness said Thayer went to the house accompanied by his daughter Carrie and Atty. Helen Czechowicz, and asked for bills.

WITH BOTTLE AND GUN

Thayer had been drinking, she said, and there was some discussion of the bills. Then, according to witness, Thayer shook hands with Desjardin, asked him how everything was, talked about the bulldogs and left.

On the afternoon of Christmas day, Miss Maynard said, Thayer returned home with a gun and a bottle, under the influence of liquor. She said Mrs. Thayer took the bottle from his pocket, but he drew the gun and forced her to return it.

"PALS" AT BREAKFAST

The maid denied that Desjardin had ever mixed highballs in the kitchen mornings, or that she ever "saw him" in the kitchen wearing pajamas.

She said that the morning after the divorce papers were served Thayer arrived at the house late, spent 10 minutes in Mrs. Thayer's room and then went to bed. He had been drinking, witness declared.

Miss Maynard said Thayer always seemed to like Desjardin and treated him as though he did. Many mornings, she testified, Thayer and Desjardin breakfasted together, and sometimes Mrs. Thayer joined them.

TALKED OF MISS MURPHY

Robert Anderson, son-in-law of Mrs. Thayer, testified her husband told him of knowing Miss Catherine Murphy, one of the two women named by Mrs. Thayer.

He quoted Thayer as saying he went to Springfield with Miss Murphy.

A CONFERENCE at the State House of the State's commission to aid the unemployed was attended today by William Phillips, regional director of the Hoover committee on unemployment. Chairman Phelan telegraphed Washington seeking information as to Massachusetts' share in the $150,000,000 relief fund. (Staff photo.)

STATE TO SHARE IN IDLE AID

James J. Phelan, chairman of the Massachusetts Emergency Committee on Unemployment, today started inquiries to find out how much Massachusetts will benefit under the $150,000,000 relief proposal made by President Hoover.

The identical telegrams sent to Senators Walsh and Gillett, and to Secretary of the Navy Adams and Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, Chairman Phelan asked if such federal improvements as the deepening and widening of the Cape Cod canal and the modernizing of the Boston Navy Yard could be included in Massachusetts federal activities.

After sending the telegrams, Mr. Phelan and members of his committee went into conference with Paul F. Clark, general agent of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, and David Bloomfield of the Retail Trade Board, in connection with the State-wide publicity campaign for the commonwealth Christmas chest. Also sitting with the group was William Phillips, regional director of the Hoover committee on employment.

Don't know what's wrong. Maybe we're still keeping cool with Cal.

That's the trouble now. They've got us selling apples when we are really watermelon and grapefruit men.

POPE TAKES UP MALTA ORDER DISPUTE

Knights' Charges Against Holy Sepulchre Members Carried to the Pontiff

Rome, Dec. 5 (AP)—A dispute between the Order of the Knights of Malta, containing many noted American members, and the equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre, was carried today to the Pope.

Marquis Edoardo Pucci-Boninsegni, nephew of the pontiff and Italian representative of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre replied through a newspaper advertisement to yesterday's advertisement by the civil tribunal at Rome on behalf of the Knights of Malta warning the public against the order's alleged infringement of the Malta constitution.

The marquis declared the charges of the Knights of Malta were unfounded and that they have no power to prevent the Holy Sepulchre Order using what titles, names, ritual etc. they wish.

He said the Knights of Malta as a religious institution has no connection with the "Order of Malta, which glorifies in the protection of the Holy See by attacking an order officially recognized as an order affiliated with the papal orders is lacking in reverence to its august protector and gives public proof of indiscipline."

Boston men who are members of the Knights of Malta are James J. Phelan of Hornblower & Weeks; Gen. Edward L. Logan, former commander of the 26th Division, present Judge of South Boston court; Frank D. Comerford, president New England Power Co., and P. A. O'Connell, president and general manager of E. T. Slattery Co.

Mr. Phelan was made a knight commander of the Order of Pope Pius IX in 1926, and was one of the charter members of the American Chapter of the Knights of Malta. The other members were appointed in January, 1929.

Miss Doris Stewart, 25, was the heroine. Aroused by the smoke, she ran through the halls, awakening the lodgers and refusing to leave until rescuers had taken care of all others. She was taken down from the fourth floor by Ladderman William Magna.

John Whitney, the janitor, turned in the alarm. Patrolman John Burke and Martin J. O'Donnell, commander of Boston Police Post No. V. F. W., rushed in to help the lodgers.

WALL ST. GRIPS ENGLAND, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—The "wild horses of Wall Street" have dragged a prostrate England over a rocky road of finance, David Lloyd George, Liberal, told a council of his party.

The "mischief" of Stanley Baldwin's American debt settlement continues to spread, the war-time premier said.

"We are lassoed fast by American finance," he cried. "We are only beginning to realize what that terrible debt settlement means. That gold standard settlement was premature and ill-thought out. We have been dragged over the course by the wild horses of Wall Street."

"DEVIL AND DEEP SEA"

Lloyd George's outline of the political line-up came out of the Liberal "war council" and on the heels of reports that he and MacDonald had patched up a working agreement based upon the Labor Premier's forthcoming electoral reform bill.

"Britain," said Lloyd George, is between the Devil and the deep sea. Our only practical choice is between the Labor party, whose avowed doctrine is socialism, and the Conservative party, which is ready to plunge heedless into a vortex of fiscal revolution. It's a sorry choice, but bad as the labor regime is, there is no desire for a Baldwin government as an alternative.

LIBERALS NOT "JUMPERS"

"Conservative critics ask us why we don't turn the Laborites out. Let us remind them that there is a grim feature of the economic slump in that paradise of protection—Wall Street. It is called jumping out the window. The Conservatives urge us to jump, but we are not jumpers. I don't believe in jumping until you know where you're going to land."

However, he had bitter criticism for the MacDonald cabinet.

"The Government," he said, "is an acknowledged failure. Unemployment is not merely a disaster, it is an opportunity. During such times an able government can put to rights things that cannot be remedied in periods of prosperity."

JOBLESS RELIEF SPEEDED UP IN CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 5—Congress speeded up today in hope of passing measures authorizing expenditure of not less than $175,000,000 for unemployment and drouth relief before Congress.

A rising tide of sentiment among both Republicans and Democrats for extraordinary government relief measures was evidenced by introduction of new bills.

J. Clawson Roop, budget director, went before the House appropriations committee to urge enactment of the administration's bill authorizing emergency expenditure of $150,000,000 in a six-months period.

WALSH PLAN CONSIDERED

He was joined by Maj.-Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, and Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads. All promised every effort would be made to provide additional employment through expansion of federal activities.

Senate and House agricultural leaders considered the administration's $25,000,000 feed and seed loan bill and a fight was waged to raise the sum to $60,000,000.

Other plans to aid business were in the making, including the proposal of Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, for a bond issue to complete rivers and harbors work at the rate of $100,000,000 a year and the proposal of Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts to provide $100,000,000 for direct relief.

EXPLAINED BY HOOVER

Efforts were made by administration leaders to meet the objections raised to Mr. Hoover's lumpsum plan of appropriating $150,000,000 for relief. Opponents regarded the detailed budget estimates submitted by Mr. Hoover as a concession. Representative Wood, Republican, of Indiana, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, promised to give Congress ample information as to how the fund would be spent.

Bills to speed public buildings work will be introduced as a result of a conference of treasury officials with Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, and others.

SCOTTISH COAL STRIKE ENDED

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—A strike in the Scottish coal fields which was called Dec. 3, was ended today when a conference of union delegates ordered the men back to the pits on Monday.

The Scottish strike was a protest against the "spreadover" working schedule under which the mine owners proposed to work their shifts in five 8-hour shifts and one 5-hour shift a week, instead of on the straight 7½ hour day provided in the new coal act.

Seventy thousand miners walked out last Monday when the new act became effective.

Boy Goes Through Thin Ice, Rescued

Shrewsbury, Dec. 5 (AP)—Carlo Colomantino, 14, Coolidge junior high school pupil, had a narrow escape from drowning today, being saved by a thrilling rescue after he had plunged through thin ice on Jordan Pond and floundered about for half an hour. With the aid of a rope and a piece of wire, Joseph Guisiti, 18, hauled the boy to shore after Joseph Glumentaro, 14, had suffered immersion in a previous rescue attempt.

No Dickens There

Broadstairs (Kent), Eng., Dec. 5—So many tourists pestered a citizen here that he put a sign "Charles Dickens did not live here" on his house.

"Better in Every Way"

"I have taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and can honestly say I feel much better in every way. I used to feel so lifeless and had no interest in anything and had to lie down often because of female weakness. Now I have a new hold on life again. My husband can see a great difference in my appearance. I heard of the Vegetable Compound through friends and I am so glad I did."—Mrs. Wm. Muetting, 1267 Morgan St., Santa Rosa, California.

Night Club Beats 3 Robbers to Roll, So They Take Gem

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—When the Simon Cohens reached home this morning they found three men in their Brooklyn apartment, bent on robbery.

There wasn't any answer to that—but the thieves took a $1300 diamond ring from Mrs. Cohen's finger.

Blockade Halts Rum at Capital's Gates

Laundry Robbed of Cash and Jewelry

More than $300 in cash and jewelry of considerable value were stolen early today by burglars who broke into a safe in the offices of the Snow White Laundry, Webster ave., Chelsea.

E. H. Rucker, of Ottumwa, Ia., who owns a white leghorn which produced 356 eggs in 365 days—a new record—explained this today as he placed the bird on exhibition at the annual poultry show.

"Since her birth I have put her through a regular course of training. She enjoys her cod liver oil and eats a perfectly balanced ration."

Women Recovered From Bandit Scare

Peiping, China, Dec. 5 (AP)—Mrs. L. D. Hayward, American missionary, and her nurse, Miss E. Gomersall, who were released by bandits after being held for a week, were said today to be in moderately good health. A rescue party is escorting them here.

Superior, Wis., Dec. 5 (AP)—Many birds in the sparsely settled north woods country will be in luck this winter. Locomotive engineers at the request of the County Fish and Game League have agreed to carry along grain in sacks and scatter it along the right of way.

Reduction in Radio Stations Is Sought

Washington, Dec. 5—Chairman White of the House Merchant Marine committee said yesterday at least one-third of the radio stations should be eliminated.

"There should be a reduction of the number of radio stations in this country now of between one-third and one-half," said the senator-elect from Maine, who fathered the Radio Act.

White has introduced a resolution calling for a list of all licenses granted by the Radio Commission.

Nineteen days to Christmas.

Nineteen days to answer hundreds of appeals for help from families in every section of New England.

Nineteen days left for Goodfellows to come to the rescue as in other years and give cheer and comfort to hungry children, mothers and fathers who have fought to keep their families together.

Letters appealing for food—for clothing—for fuel to heat their cheerless homes continue to pile up on the desk of the Christmas Basket Fund.

Responses have been generous and have come mostly from those who have only a small portion of this world's goods. Many cold and hungry children have been fed and clothed by people who have obtained the addresses of the needy from this office.

Many fathers have been given work, many mothers have been assured by kindly folks that they will be provided with food and fuel during the winter months.

But there are others—many others — all over Greater Boston and New England whose appeals have not yet been answered. You can help them by calling the Christmas Basket Fund Editor at Liberty 4000 or by sending a donation to the office.

There is much work to be done. Much help needed.

And only 19 days remain. HELP THEM TODAY.

WOLL FOR LESS TOIL, MORE PAY

Philadelphia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Labor's solution of unemployment can be found in higher wages and fewer working hours and days, Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, said today in opening a conference of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

"In the midst of our alleged prosperity," he said, "few American workers obtain anything like a satisfactory standard of living. The first need is a higher standard of living for masses, not solely to provide sufficient employment but to advance social progress as a national policy."

Paul Blanshard of the League of Industrial Democracy, New York, said that private industry had failed to give security of income, work or old age to the majority of American workers.

"President Hoover and the administration at Washington are seeking to evade responsibility by appropriations for public works which should have been made years ago," Blanshard said.

Cuban President Shakes Up Cabinet

Havana, Dec. 5 (AP)—President Machado today shook up his cabinet, switching the portfolios of three secretaries. Carlos De Cespedes was made Secretary of Public Instruction. Octavio Averhoff becomes Secretary of Justice and Jesus Maria Barraque was made Secretary of Public Works.

Man Decapitated in Fall Over Saw

Fitchburg, Dec. 5 (AP)—Richard H. Cotton, a foreman at the Putnam Machine Works, was decapitated today when he collapsed and fell across a band-saw he was operating.

Fight on Wife Killer's Estate

Richmond, Va., Dec. 5—Charles R. Craddock's divorce from Blanche Craddock, granted at Alexandria on March 1, 1930, was set aside on June 17. Thirteen days later Craddock killed Blanche Craddock and committed suicide. On the theory that when the divorce was set aside Craddock married again, the administrators of Blanche Craddock now claim one-third of his estate.

Support of Ewald Denied by Steubens

Washington, Dec. 5 (INS)—Lieut. Comdr. S. P. Ginder, commandant of the fighting airplane squadron No. 3 of the battle fleet, was presented with the Schiff Trophy for excellent work of his squadron during the last year by President Hoover today. Cardiff Loses Fight to Get Its Fake Giant Back

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—The Cardiff giant was a native of Fort Dodge, and in Fort Dodge he is going to stay.

M. W. Day of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce announced today that efforts to take back to Cardiff, N. Y., the gypsum statue once accepted as the fossilized carcass of a prehistoric giant, have been abandoned.

Fort Dodge, where the giant was carved out of a block of gypsum to fool the public, refuses to let him go.

In October, 1869, William C. Newell, a farmer near the village of Cardiff, 14 miles south of Syracuse, claimed to have discovered the giant while digging a well. People went from all over the East to see Newell's find. It was estimated that his income from admission charges was $26 an hour.

They took the giant—nearly 11 feet tall, with a head 21 inches long and shoulders three feet square across—touring.

And about that time Prof. O. C. March of Yale proved the Cardiff giant was just a gypsum man and that, if he had remained long in the earth where he was found, he would have entirely disintegrated. Back Bay, Boston.

LINTON'S CREW STILL MISSING

No further word was received here yesterday regarding the wreck of the British motor schooner Linton, which went to her doom on West Cape, near Yarmouth, N. S., early Wednesday morning in a howling northwester, while bound from there to Selmah to load a cargo of lumber for Boston.

Only one body was washed ashore at last accounts that of Casman Fry, who had given his address as Back Bay, Boston.

Gifford A. Cochran, Noted Rich Turfman, Dies

New York, Dec. 4 (AP)—Gifford A. Cochran, wealthy social registrite, sportsman and business executive, was found dead today apparently from a heart attack in the hallway of his Madison ave. apartment. The body was found by a milkman.

Mr. Cochran, noted for his extensive string of race horses, formerly was president of Alexander Smith & Sons, Yonkers carpet manufacturers, and was an official of a number of other concerns.

Among his horses are Conventry, Flying Ebony, Epithet and Flying Heels.

His widow formerly Mabel H. Taylor, obtained a divorce in Paris in 1927. They had three children, Jean, Gifford, Jr., and Drayton.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Ewing of Yonkers and New York; Mrs. Percy K. Stewart of Plainfield, N. J., and Mrs. Elsie Cochran Bowen of New York City, and a brother, William F. Cochran of Baltimore. His daughter Jean has been married to George Atwell of New York City.

A younger brother, Alexander Smith Cochran, who died last year, was once the husband of Ganna Walska.

NOREENE AND JIMMY, Nora Twomey and Jimmy Bell, RKO Juvenile dancing and singing team, have joined the ranks of vaudeville and musical comedy stars who will appear at the midnight show, to be held December 15, to aid the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. Have you bought your ticket?

Dancing Partners to Aid Basket Fund Show

Queenie Smith, star of "The Street Singer" now playing at the Shubert Theater, took her place on the program of the midnight show to be staged at the Keith-Boston Theater at midnight, Dec. 15, in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

Queenie has already done valiant work for the poor families of Greater Boston. She will stage impromptu shows at Boston business houses for the purpose of selling tickets to the midnight show in addition to being a star at the show.

Another surprise which Harry Rice, manager of the Keith-Boston, announced today was the signing of Hum and Strum, radio favorites, who will make one of their rare personal appearances at the midnight show.

Then there will be Noreene and Jimmie, the RKO juvenile dancing and singing team, and Isabel Dwan, musical comedy and vaudeville favorite, and a host of other stars on the bill.

It will be a show you will long remember. Not only because it will be a bargain entertainment but that the dollar you give will be turned over to needy families of Boston who have appealed to the Christmas Basket Fund for relief.

Tickets are on sale at the box offices of the Keith-Boston, at the RKO Keith Theater, Tremont st., and the Jordan Marsh ticket agency.

TOMORROW YOU CAN buy it!

The amazing NEW MOTOR FUEL which gives you super-performance at regular-gas price

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH

Extra quality in every essential. No extra cost

TOMORROW'S THE DAY! Bright and early you can fill your car with ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH—and give yourself a new thrill in driving.

Tonight, try the hardest hill you know with your old gas, or line up with other cars for a traffic-light get-away. And then, tomorrow, put ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH to the same test. Man, oh man, what a difference you'll find!

Here's a motor fuel designed especially to give you super-performance at regular-gas price.

Years of research and large sums of money have gone into its development. It has been tested under all kinds of driving conditions. Into its refining go some entirely new crudes, carefully selected from the world's oil-fields. The result is a gasoline unequalled by any competitive product out of scores examined in our laboratory.

You'll see that result tomorrow. A motor fuel which will start your car instantly, even in the coldest weather. Give you flashing pick-up in traffic . . . power on hills . . . maximum economy under all conditions. ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is a pure product—clear in color. It has no unpleasant odor . . . a very important point if you drive a closed car.

It is a particularly good motor fuel for women, because it makes driving easier and surer.

FARMER MUST SAVE HIMSELF, SAYS BOARD

Washington, Dec. 5—While the Federal Farm Board is doing everything in its power to re-establish agriculture on a profitable basis, the farmer himself must undertake a comprehensive reconstruction of his farm in the line of reforestating, cultivation and preservation, the board declared today in its annual report.

In its financial statement, the board declared that on June 30, 1930, it had available, of the $250,000,000 given it by Congress, $50,980,368.

WHEAT OUTLOOK BAD.

Commitments by the board to various industries had amounted to $24,264,000 in grain; $90,000,000 in grain stabilization; $8,678,000 in grapes; $70,118,695 in cotton; $15,000,000 in cotton stabilization, and other items bringing the total to $242,640,476.

Of this, $43,195,327 had been paid back by the borrowers.

Failure of cotton producers to curtail acreage substantially in 1930 led to defeat of stabilization measures, it was said.

As for wheat, the board said it had concluded the world will remain gloomy through 1937 with the general price trend downward.

MUST CUT ACREAGE

"The board could see no hope," it said, "for arresting such a movement or preventing its serious consequences to American wheat farmers, by co-operative marketing as such, by stabilization measures of the type already employed, or through adopting any of the proposed measures designed to dispose of the surplus abroad at prices below domestic levels.

"The obvious economy remedy . . . is curtailment of production . . . so that the tariff might become effective on American prices."

BREDT RESIGNS CABINET SEAT IN BERLIN

Berlin, Dec. 5 (AP)—Chancellor Bruening, his government weakened by the resignation of Johannes Bredt, minister of justice, made a personal appeal to the Reichstag today not to revoke the emergency finance measures that President Von Hindenburg promulgated by decree on Tuesday.

The Bredt resignation widens the breach between Chancellor Bruening and the Economic party.

Bredt chose between party loyalty and his friendship for President Von Hindenburg. He preferred not to bolt his party. Neither Bruening nor Von Hindenburg made any further effort to hold him.

While the Economic party's defection will reduce the government majority in the Reichstag by 23 votes Chancellor Bruening still counts on at least 295 out of 577 votes to defeat opposition motions. Two hundred and eighty-nine votes are required for a majority.

Hitler Calls for Sword to Answer "World Hate"

Berlin, Dec. 5 (US)—"The sword must once again supplant the plowshare, and from the blood in the fields rich crops must come!"

This was the cry of Adolf Hitler, Austrian leader of Germany's Fascists, last night to the student organization of the National Socialist Party.

Other nations are singing a "hymn of hate against the Reich," he said, and fiercely pleaded:

"We cannot rise by going begging from conference to conference.

"We must display our unity and vigor to gain for the Reich her proper place in the world.

"If Germany is hated by her enemies, it does not matter. There is more respect for us in that hate than in any love there might be."

Guards Redoubled to Prevent New Riots

Berlin, Dec. 5—Redoubled police guards patrolled Berlin and other cities of Germany today to prevent further food riots and demonstrations by Communists and unemployed, which already have resulted in three deaths, injuries to more than 30 persons and the arrests of 200 others.

Chicago Bondsmen Indicted in Racket

Chicago, Dec. 5 (US)—True bills were reported by the grand jury yesterday against six professional bondsmen in Chicago's $10,000,000 bail bond scandal. The charge in each case is perjury, punishable by a penitentiary sentence of from one to 14 years.

Names of five of the defendants were reported as Andrea Guerriero, Saul J. Shields, R. J. Frierson, Clement Wertz and Ben Goodman. The name of the sixth man was withheld.

18th Amendment Bad Say Women "Drys"

St. Louis, Dec. 5 (INS)—The aims of the National Women's Organization for Prohibition were outlined by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, president, at a dinner here last night.

"We stand for temperance, for wise and honest government, for better social conditions and for the protection of the right of the individual to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," Mrs. Sabin said. "We are opposed to the unlicensed and unregulated liquor traffic in the control of a criminal class, as the result of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Fish Strike in Nova Scotia Ends

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 5 (AP)—Fishermen of North Sydney were to return to work today after a three-week strike for higher prices. At previous prices, they failed to clear expenses, he declared.

SHELL ACTS TO BOOST OIL

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Royal Dutch Shell group, the world's largest producer of crude oil, is launching a campaign to bolster crude oil prices, along with producers in two other basic industries, copper and steel.

"The great copper and steel industries have taken the initial step to bring about an improvement in their position. Why not oil?" asked Richard Airey, one of the leading officials of the Royal Dutch Shell group in the United States, in a statement to the Associated Press today.

"The producers who have made possible the great curtailment of production already accomplished should be compensated by higher prices."

Frederick Godber, director of Shell, on the eve of his return to London after a survey of the oil industry in the United States, predicted "ruination of thousands of oil producers and excessive waste of capital and oil" unless a definite program of production curtailment were adopted.

Bus Hearings Ordered

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—Hearings were ordered today by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the motor bus regulation bill which the Senate returned yesterday.

'Love' Letters of Shaw and Terry to Be Published

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Endearing letters of George Bernard Shaw and the late Ellen Terry, who met but once in 30 years of correspondence, are to be published.

Elbridge I. Adams of the Fountain Press has permitted a representative of the New York Times to view the correspondence, comprising 100 epistles from Shaw and many more from Miss Terry.

Shaw "frankly adored" Miss Terry, says the Times, and the letters "contain Shaw's philosophy of love, sometimes tender and sometimes ardent, as he eloquently expressed it again and again to the woman he loved."

Their acquaintance began in 1896, when Miss Terry wrote Shaw, then musical critic on the World in London, and continued to her death in 1928.

Miss Terry did not come face to face with her admirer until 1905, when they met casually as author and actress, and parted, never to see each other again, though the letters continued.

The actress in letters often reproached herself for talking too much time from her "Dear Bernie."

"I didn't like you when you first wrote to me," she wrote in an early missive. "I thought you unkind and exceedingly stiff and prim."

In 1896 Miss Terry went to see Shaw. He was in conference with Sir Henry Irving. She wrote that she got no farther than the door, mat, heard his voice and skuddled home.

"I couldn't come in," she wrote Shaw. "When I saw you I might have thrown my arms around your neck and hugged you."

Spat! A paper ball hit the teacher on the ear.

SENATE TO GET COURT NOTE MONDAY

Washington, Dec 5—The special message recommending American membership in the League Court will be transmitted to the Senate by President Hoover Monday, it was indicated at the White House today.

The message was ready for submission yesterday but the President changed his plans and decided to give precedence to a request for emergency appropriations totaling $150,000,000 for public works for the relief of unemployment.

The President expects the matter will be immediately referred to the foreign relations committee and kept there for some weeks before it is brought to the floor of the Senate where a bitter fight against it is assured.

The message was prepared in collaboration with Secretary of State Stimson. It is a review of previous correspondence in which the President and Secretary of State have advocated American adherence to the international tribunal of the League of Nations.

A preliminary maneuver to secure an agreement, postponing action on the new world court protocol until next December, ended in failure today when foes of the court rejected the proposed truce.

Friends of the court, acting in concert with the White House, approached both Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Moses (R) of New Hampshire, seeking such an agreement. Both Borah and Moses refused the suggestion.

The peace move was intended to remove all danger of the protocol being used as a basis for filibustering against necessary legislation or appropriation bills in the present session.

Murder Scented in Hunter's Death

Milford, Pa., Dec. 5 (AP)—A mysterious tragedy of the deer hunting grounds of Pike County was under investigation by the authorities today. What was at first believed to have been a battle to the death between a wounded deer and Wellington de Groat of Matamoras, N. Y., was viewed by police, in the light of developments, as a possible murder.

A post mortem examination revealed that de Groat's death had been caused by a bullet.

Will Leaves Dowries to Poor Greek Girls

Philadelphia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Provision that the income from the bulk of his $10,000 estate be used each year to purchase dowries for two or three poor girls of marriageable age in his native village of Kaminaki, Greece, was contained in the will of John Litras, retired Philadelphia confectioner, probated today.

Macedonians Row at Sofia Funeral

Court Can't Change $1000

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Sydelle Parker, show girl, has been carting around a $1000 bill and then some. She produced the "grand" in traffic court to pay a $5 fine. There was insufficient change in the exchequer. Then she found a $100 bill in her purse.

Dreaded Addison's Disease Cured by Cattle Extract

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., Dec 5 (AP)—Restoration of a man from death's door to apparently perfect health in 48 hours was revealed today at the physicians laboratory.

The man had Addison's Disease. A purified hormone was injected into the veins of a farmer 29 years old by Dr. Leonard G. Rowntree and Dr. Carl H. Greene.

"Before its use," they reported, "the patient was excessively weak, bedridden, depressed, nauseated, losing weight and showed evidence of failing circulation. Within 48 hours he had taken a new lease of life, his appetite was excellent, his strength was greatly improved and he appeared to be in perfect health."

Addison's Disease, first described almost a century ago, is caused by failure of the adrenal glands, two small organs recently discovered in the past in medical literature as invariably fatal.

The hormone used was an extract of the cortex of the adrenal glands of cattle.

Fatal R-101 Crash Probe Nears End

London, Dec 5 (AP)—The inquiry into the loss of the dirigible R-101 was resumed today in what was expected to be its final session. Squadron Leader Booth who was the R-101's Canada and Egypt flight commander, and Flight Lieut. Leonard Wallace Payne, wireless officer, and pilot, who were among the 48 victims of the airship's fiery plunge in France, were expected to be heard.

ANTUCKET OMAN SUICIDE

Nantucket, Dec. 5—Mrs. Annie Gideon Pooler, 58, of Nantucket and New York, committed suicide by turning on the gas in the kitchen stove here Wednesday, it was revealed today.

The body was found by a Japanese butler, Thomas Tanaka, who was awakened by the smell of gas. Ill health and heavy financial loss in the stock market were seen as possible motives for the act.

Mrs. Pooler is survived by her husband, Lewis, and a son, John [illegible] New York.

The domestic help problem is solved by using a kitchenette apartment and the [illegible] are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Winged Messenger a Guest

WHEN A CARRIER PIGEON wearing leg band 1930 W357,-434 crashed against the window of her apartment, 44A Joy st., West End, and fell exhausted to the sill, Mrs. Ralph Stout took the bird in and soon revived it with food and warmth. She has set about finding the owner of the pigeon, evidently a valuable specimen, which had flown far to Boston in the bitter cold. (Staff photo.)

In her capacity as honorary colonel of the 26th U. S. Inf., Miss Davies will head a group of film stars coming from Hollywood for the military pageant and ball to be given in the civic auditorium on December 12.

Hoover Visit Secret Is Bared by Senator

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan won't seem to be quite a diplomat. He spent an hour with President Hoover. One is not supposed to discuss such things.

The answer was prompt: "A second-hand car."

Science Seeks Life's Secret With Million-Volt X-Ray

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5 (INS)—Science today dared to hope that soon its powerful new instruments of experiment—the million-volt X-Ray tubes—would reveal the secret of life itself.

The revelation of this amazing theory was made before the Radiological Society of America convention by Dr. Edwin C. Ernst, president.

"The long vista of scientific truth which we now glimpse," Dr. Ernst said, "surpasses the wildest flights of imagination."

"This research has only begun in the field of life. In working with radiation and its effect upon cell life and cell growth we are gradually discovering the functions of every cell and gland in the body. We have discovered that this radiation can be used to stimulate, or to destroy.

"In other words, that we can force a lazy cell to work, or we can destroy a diseased cell.

"We frankly do not understand all that we have discovered, yet. However, we are going farther and farther along the road to where we will be able to take a cell apart and ascertain what causes the phenomenon of life, what causes it to grow by dividing itself, perhaps what the vital spark is that makes life.

"Whether it is an electrical radiation derived from nature or not, naturally we do not know as yet."

RAID ON BELLE LIVINGSTONE

New York, Dec 5 (AP)—For the third time in recent months, Belle Livingstone is involved with the law.

Nine boulevardiers in flawless evening clothes entered her newest 'salon" near Park ave. last night and made merry around a soda bar. About midnight they announced themselves as federal prohibition agents.

Miss Livingstone and eight employes were arrested. Some 400 top-hatted and silk-gowned guests were invited to continue their revelry elsewhere. Alleged assorted liquors to the value of $1200 found a new home.

Miss Livingstone is a former actress and was the so-called toast of two continents in the convivial nineties. Her ex-husbands include a count and several millionaires.

HELPING HAND PLEAS TOUCH AGED WOMAN

Touched by pleas of needy families requesting aid of the Helping Hand of the Boston Evening American, an aged lady, in moderate circumstances today offered to help those in want.

She is 83 and desires no support from a son who has not worked for six months. She is glad to give what little she has to those in greater need.

Her action sets an example to thousands of people who live in comfortable homes, people who have regular and substantial food and who are well-clothed.

There are hundreds of letters from poor families filed with the Helping Hand editor. You can help as the aged lady has by reading for the addresses of families in need of food and clothing. Here is the letter she has written

"I am a lady 83 years old and I am very deeply touched by the unemployment situation. My son hasn't worked for six months. We get very little help, but what ever help we get perhaps we can help others now. I have two upstairs rooms where you can have a fire and if I was down and out I would love to have it. I will give it rent free. There is one bed and spring.

I also have some clothes that a woman who can sew can make over into things for children to wear. I am glad to help if I can as I know what it is to be poor. Please let me know if you know of anyone that wishes to take this offer. At least they can have shelter for the winter."

GIRL WANTS CLOTHES
(Refer to Case 86)

I am writing this letter to ask you something for Christmas.

My father did not work for three months and he did not pay his rent. There are seven in the family: five boys ages two, four, six, eight, 15 and two girls, ages 10, 14. Please be so good as to and my two-year-old brother a pair of stockings and a winter sweater. A pair of mittens and stockings for my four-year-old brother. A pair of rubbers, hat, stockings and union suits for the brother six years old. My brother eight, please send him pair of mittens, a hat a pair of stockings and a sweater. My big brother please send him a sweater and two or three union suits. Please send something for my two sisters. Please send me a pair of mittens pair of stockings, a dress sweater. Please send my mother a pair of shoes. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

This girl lives in North Cambridge. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 86.

WIFE'S APPEAL
(Refer to Case 87)

I thought I would write you as I need help very badly. My husband has been sick for over three years and it has taken all of our money the little we had. Just this last July he went under an operation for appendicitis and he is not strong enough to go to work.

I am in a run down condition from taking care of him and from going without food that I should have had. We had to break up housekeeping. My husband is with his people but I don't know what I will do after December 20 as someone is paying my board until then, and then I don't know what to do. Perhaps someone will help me.

This woman lives in Dorchester. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 87.

MOTHER ASKS AID
(Refer to Case 88)

My husband being out of work now for some time we are having a hard time and struggle to get along. I have seven children — girls, ages 12, 8, 7, 5, boys, 9 3, and 11 months old. We would appreciate any help, either food or clothing.

Educational Fund for Dry Enforcement Is Killed

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—A $10,000 appropriation for educational work in prohibition enforcement was struck out of the Treasury supply bill today in the House. Action by Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, led to the elimination.

"The man at the head of a bureau that permits the diversion of 40,000,000 gallons of alcohol for bootlegging purposes isn't fitted to teach prohibition," Blanton declared.

James M. Doran is commissioner of industrial alcohol. He formerly was commissioner of prohibition. The House also rejected an amendment prohibiting the use of government funds for poisoning industrial alcohol by a vote of 206 to 54.

The wet bloc drive against poisoning of industrial alcohol was opened by Representative Stevenson, Democrat, New York, a physician. "It is a disgrace to civilization to be using poison in industrial alcohol when there are other drugs for denaturing, just as effective against beverage use," he declared.

"There are more than 100,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol poisoned, 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 of which are being diverted into bootleg channels. Men and women are being blinded; a teaspoonful of this stuff will cause total blindness."

Notable Women Furnish Delicious Recipes

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEX

While I sat wondering what especially interesting recipes I could exchange with you today, I happened to see my treasured blue volume of D. A. R. recipes. I know you'll enjoy as I have the recipes sponsored by some of New England's most notable women.

The place of honor goes to Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller's recipe for Caramel Cake with Butter Frosting.

Martha Lee

CARAMEL CAKE WITH BUTTER FROSTING

2 eggs
1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter
Pinch of salt
2 cups flour
2 tbsps. cocoa
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup milk

Cream butter and sugar; add eggs, well beaten. Sift flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt together. Add to egg mixture alternately with the milk. Add flavoring. Bake in moderate oven for one hour.

Butter Frosting

1 tsp. butter
1 heaping cup confectioner's sugar
1 tbsp. cocoa
1½ tbsps. warm milk
1 tsp. vanilla

And do try these Fruit Cookies, from Mrs. Alfred J. Bosworth, president General National Society Daughters of the American Revolution

FRUIT COOKIES

Put six cups of oatmeal through the coarsest knife of meat grinder and mix in eight tbsps. of hot water. Cream 1 cup of butter, 1 cup lard, 1 cup white sugar and 1 cup of brown. Add to this the oatmeal and let the mixture stand for a few minutes. Then add 2 eggs well beaten, 2 cups of flour, 1 tsp. of salt and 1 of soda.

Filling

Run through a meat grinder 1 pound of raisins and add 1 cup of sugar, a little water and cook until thick enough to spread.

Roll out cookie mixture, cut in rounds. Spread raisin filling quite thick on one round, then lay another on top; press edges together and bake in a quick oven. Do not allow them to get too brown.

To Mrs. James Charles Peabody Stat Regent, Massachusetts, we make our bow of thanks for this luscious Gingerbread.

GINGERBREAD

½ cup lard
½ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
½ tsp. ginger
½ cup molasses
Pinch salt
¼ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. saleratus
1 rounded cupful pastry flour

Mix thoroughly and add ½ cup boiling water. Bake in fairly hot oven.

And here's a never-fail Sunshine Cake, from Mrs. Stephen P. Hurd, State Vice Regent.

SUNSHINE CAKE

6 eggs
1-3 tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup granulated sugar
¾ cup flour

Beat whites of eggs, when half beaten add cream of tartar, beat very stiffly, then stir sugar in lightly. Add beaten yolks of eggs and flour a few times folding flour in lightly. Flavor with teaspoon lemon. Bake 35 minutes. Many start this cake in cold oven, turning gas on as cake is put in to bake.

I only wish I'd room for more of these famous recipes today—but watch this column for further treats. Faithfully yours

Dietitian Gives Lecture

MRS. H. S. MacBRIDE, well-known dietitian, made this scrumptious Sandwich Loaf and other party sandwiches in a special demonstration at the Martha Lee Cooking School.

Sandwich Demonstration Another Big Success

"Wasn't it a wonderful lesson? I'm going to have the bridge club at my house next week and I'll certainly make that Sandwich Loaf and those Rolled Sandwiches!"

"I came way from Providence and I'm well repaid for my time and trouble."

These were a few of the comments heard among the departing guests at the Martha Lee Cooking School, where a special Sandwich Demonstration was given by Mrs. H. S. MacBride dietitian for the Continental Baking Company.

Mrs. MacBride recently has concluded a series of demonstration lectures at Jordan-Marsh Company and at the Boston Food Fair, but said she never found a more appreciative audience than that of the Martha Lee Cooking School.

The Brides' and Business Girls' class was especially enthusiastic and we suspect many a dangling young man will be decoyed by some of these succulent sandwiches between now and New Year's.

Mrs. MacBride's demonstration included a Wonder Hot Loaf, a Wonder Cold Loaf, five varieties of Rolled Sandwiches, Cornucopia Sandwiches and Calla Lily Sandwiches, and we'll be mighty glad to send you the lesson sheets for these, as well as thirteen of Martha's favorite candy recipes, which are included in this same lesson. These candies are of the simple home variety, easy to make and easy to eat, and include Scotch Mallows, dipped in Butterscotch, Lolly Pops, Barley Sugar Drops, Uncooked Fudge, Potato Coconnut Candy and several what-nots. Better send for your copy today.

Aren't you crazy about the new wonder-fifteens—the taste-tempting rolls that can be had at almost any bakers'? Real old-fashioned light rolls, with the tenderest of crusts, and more than a bakers' dozen—because there are 15 in each package.

A quick heating in your own oven will give you a new treat for tomorrow's breakfast or supper. Spread them liberally with butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, or serve with orange marmalade or currant jelly. Yum! Yum! And rest assured Mr. Budget will approve of them, because they are only 10c for the 15.

Best of Fish Chowders

Smell the tempting fragrance issuing from the Martha Lee Cooking School? The answer is that it's lunch time and the staff is dining royally on some of the famous Maine fish chowder that I told you about so often, and that each day finds a firmer spot in my affections.

My very best recipe fails to produce any such delicious chowder as is contained in this convenient tin. Just the addition of a little milk and a dab of butter, and behold! a real bona-fide down-East Maine fish chowder unrivaled. I do believe, from coast to coast.

If you've never become acquainted with this chowder made from Uncle Jim's famous recipe and from the finest of fish caught in the clear cold waters of Maine drop into the Martha Lee Cooking School and we'll be glad to share our bowl with you.

Why make suds by hand?

Buy them ready-made by the box!

Women tell us Chipso Granules make other washing methods seem old-fashioned! Read what they say about this new form of Chipso

Mrs. J. W. M.—
"Washday easy as other days now!"

"I belong to a bridge club that meets Monday afternoons! And my hands never 'give away' the fact that I don't send my washing out like the others. That's because I can put my clothes to soak in piles of Chipso Granules suds without even wetting my hands—and the rubbing itself takes much less time than ever before. The suds 'stand up' for hours and get all the dirt loose by themselves!"

Mrs. A. M. N.—
"No time wasted making suds"

"My washing machine and I sing together on washdays! We both like Chipso Granules so much. I have a machine-full of suds in a jiffy, without using my hands at all—and those suds 'stay put' through two or three loads of clothes. My washing is done beautifully in a third less time than ever before."

"My delicate hands no hindrance to washing now," writes Mrs. M. M. C., of Cambridge

Have you the kind of hands that simply can't stand strong soap and hard rubbing? Then you'll cheer with the others for Chipso Granules, the new form of Chipso that gives you instant suds at the touch of water. Every bit of soap is dissolved with no help from you—and the suds stand up through hours of soaking! Thus rich, concentrated soap solution coaxes dirt away and cuts grease easily—only very dirty spots may need a little rubbing. And these suds are safe for colored things!

Mrs. F. P. M.—
"We made the movies!"

"We have an ironclad rule against leaving dishes—so when friends called to take us to the movies the other night, we said, 'Sorry, we won't be ready in time.' But just that day I had bought my first package of Chipso Granules. What's the use of going into details? Dishes were done in ten minutes, and we made the movies!"

Mrs. W. A. C.—
"Suds last through three washers of clothes"

"Those quick Chipso suds certainly last!" writes a Worcester woman. "I never add any Granules to either the second or third load—and every washing machine user will realize how handy and economical that is!" Yes indeed, Mrs. C—. Women do realize—and Chipso (flakes and granules) is the most widely used soap for washing machines.

Childless Wives Hit For "Hogging" Jobs

Editor Boston American:

This talk of unemployment can easily be explained. Women, married, no children, husbands working, all holding good paying positions, while men equally as brilliant are idle. One cooperative bank board three married ladies, one assistant secretary all with husbands making a good work a day.

Going into one of our select stores I saw behind the counter, seeing a married man whose husband is a builder, who NEEDS his houses. Yet that same day, I met a girl who had no friends, looking for a position—and DESPERATE. It seems a pity that men making $75 per week should have wives, childless, earning $50, too, when little ones are suffering and men losing all the backbone they ever had.

Humanistic Contrasts In Two "Conferences"

Editor Boston American:

Here are two remarkable conferences: one by the new humanism, and one by the old.

Conference number one:

Problem for discussion: Reduction of Armament in Behalf of Peace.

(1) Places and date of meeting carefully selected months ahead; (2) An unlimited session for due deliberation; (3) Specially selected delegates, in temperament, intellect, and practical intelligence; (4) Every question but the bare naked elements of the problem under discussion, inexorably excluded; (5) Infinite tact, infinite forbearance, and steady hard thinking, leaving no stone unturned to find, true to the laws of God an exact formula of the problem; and lastly, Willing to compromise on part solution if not possible at the session to find a solution of the whole.

Conference number two:

Problem for discussion: Alcohol as a Free Human Beverage

(1) No specially selected place for calm deliberation; (2) no specially selected delegates as to temperament, intellect and practical intelligence; (3) no scientifically selected data; (4) no tact, no forbearance, no steady hard thinking, to find true to the natural laws of God and EXACT FORMULA of the problem; (5) on the contrary: problem thrown out, country wide, to twenty million Tom, Dick and Harry voters, going about their everyday business, haphazardly discussing this serious complicated problem with any old body, in any old way and whenever it suited their fancy, purpose and personal interest; the problem at once becomes a crazy boss of politics, religion, fanatic sin, personal selfishness and bubble, until it becomes a perfect riot of alien elements; (6) finally in that deplorable condition on a mass of vague generalities, and by a minority vote, the dry's fling a law into the constitution, based on fines, prisons and guns, forever prohibiting the use of alcohol as a free human beverage in this country.

Which of these two conferences reflects the greater sanity, practical Christianity and God?

Calls on Soldiers to Fight for Cash Payment

Editor Boston American:

Soldier If you have a bonus certificate, out of work or sick, unable to work, wife and children, nothing to eat, what do you do? Why, you get a loan. If your certificate calls for $1236 your loan gains after two years of issue is $109.

If you are forced to take second loan, Uncle Sam makes sure your first loan, with mighty good interest is paid back. Your second loan would be about $34. Each yr if you get less and your loan $ms gets more.

The bonus was given to you so that you soldier might have an even break with the draft duckers that were pulling down good money while you were ducking hot lead for a buck a day, with coolers and canned horse thrown in.

The draft duckers did not have to wait until 1945 for their pay. Why should you have to wait, Soldier? Mr. Peabody is right, when he asked veterans to wake up. He has got the old ball rolling in good shape. Soldier — keep it rolling right into the treasury. The money is there. Andy might come out and tell the Senate—If you pay the bonus, it will bankrupt the country. But you know Soldier it's the old army game. You have all heard Andy before.

Music Lovers Indebted to Handel & Haydn Society

Editor Boston American:

I wonder how many people realize the debt that music-lovers in this country owe to the Handel & Haydn Society.

The orchestral version of Handel's "Messiah," used wherever the oratorio is sung, is the one the society commissioned Robert Franz to write in 1876. It was through the society's publications that the great oratorios and masses became known to the American music-loving public.

The wide-spread English custom of presenting the "Messiah" at the Christmas season was inaugurated by the Handel & Haydn Society.

Today the Society functions as a music school. Singers are furnished church choirs, and music teachers and schools send their young singers to the Society for training. The Society itself can always be depended upon to take part in festival or benefit affairs of civic importance. Its concerts give young people a liberal education in the works of the great composers. In the past, the Society did much to help make Boston a great musical center. Now, the Handel & Haydn Society is actually a civic center that offers a valuable contribution to the musical life of the city.

No member of the Society is paid for any service. The chorus practices from 90 to 60 hours for its series of concerts, to say nothing of time devoted to study or pay to attend.

The Society is not dependent upon public donations for support, but it wants the public to know and be interested in what it is doing for music in Boston, that it may maintain its past reputation even adding to it, and that it may bring to its concert platforms famous singers that all music lovers are eager to hear.

Very truly yours,

COURTNEY GUILD, President,
Handel & Haydn Society.

3,000,000 New Jobs Under 8-Hour Day

Editor Boston American:

It seems to me the country's best minds are unable to find some successful plan to solve unemployment.

Any ordinary person knows one-third of the country's active workers, work more than 60 and 70 hours a week. For some reason, they are not satisfied, even if they wanted shorter hours they can't get them.

If the government wants a remedy for unemployment, here it is: Send them to the limit. Make a law that no establishment should employ their help more than 6 days a week, six days a week. If every store or employer in the country had an average of one man, there would be about 3,000,000 new jobs provided, at little if any lessening of profits to employers.

CHARLES SOLOS.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Having seen in your splendid paper the report of state survey of crippled children, I take this opportunity of expressing to you my personal thanks for the publicity which you have given the bill which was filed by Rep. Fred A. Hutchinson of Lynn to provide a teacher for crippled children, the editorials published at the completion of the 1930 session were splendid and the fact that you made special comment of this bill greatly impressed me.

As I am the mother of the child who was the means of bringing to the attention of Mr. Hutchinson and as I attended every hearing given this bill, and spoke in behalf of those children, I am most grateful that a law is now in operation that is ahead of the state survey, which will, when completed, take care of these children who have, up to the time of the filing of this bill, been neglected unintentionally, as to their education.

Every parent in the state I am sure will welcome a law that will provide a means for giving these unfortunate children a chance.

Thanking you not only for your interest in this particular bill, but for the good news you are publishing every day.

MRS. GERTRUDE E. FOGG.

CERESOTA FLOUR

Creamy White···In Its Own Right

NOT ALL flours come by their color honestly. Some are made from inferior wheat and must be bleached by artificial means to obtain a presentable color. The creamy whiteness of Ceresota Flour comes from a natural milling of the best Northern wheat, and its flavor is Mother Nature's own. The word "Unbleached" on a sack of Ceresota is your insurance that you are getting flour that is absolutely pure and wholesome.

BROKEN RAINBOWS

The Quick, Brillian Story of a Strange Love Triangle

Wilda and Logan at Week-End Party

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."

He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Bess Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garcie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is understood to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a richer life. Wilda goes to house party where Logan is also invited.

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930.)

"BECAUSE I want you. You're my pal. Isn't that reason enough for you to go to the house party," said Coral.

"Nix. Albeit, oodles of gratitude," replied Wilda.

"Please come."

"I have to pack for Europe, I tell you."

"But you're not sailing till Wednesday evening!"

Coral was determined that her friend should be "in" on this country house party on her last week-end at home.

"I tell you Logan will be there—"

"That's nothing in my young life," fibbed Wilda. But her pulse raced at the sound of that one name.

First Class Boob
Coral Calls Wilda

"Then you are a first-class boob to let Myrtle Gleason get away with murder! I tell you she's after him tooth and nail."

The crosstown traffic held them up.

"I promised the McPhersons I positively would bring you for the week-end, and you can't wriggle out of it," persisted Wilda's friend.

"They really expect me, do they?"

"Yes. Now say you'll come!"

Coral was persuasive, just like that. Coral painted a glowing picture of a lively week-end in the McPherson menage.

"They have such an interesting crowd. You do just what you please. And the bathing's marvelous."

Wilda had bought a swimming suit today, a well-cut Terrific chic affair that had cost $15 and was an import from Paris.

Wilda was stylish-like in that suit, with its backless lemon colored top and French-blue "panticts."

If Logan should see her in the seat Wilda—not a bit conceited though she was—knew perfectly that she had a superb young figure

Swims Like Fish
Wilda Had New Suit

In a high school test hadn't her measurements—nearer than any of the pupils—approximated to those of a certain historic Venus"

And she could swim like a fish, and was perfectly at home on a surf board.

"You'll come, won't you?" begged Coral

Wilda weakened and said "Yes."

"There's the very dress for you. See! In that window!"

They stopped outside one of the most important shops.

Against a velvet background was displayed one perfect evening gown.

In pale pink taffeta faille, brocaded with pasted flower motifs, it was a veritable dream.

"Wilda, the very thing for you!"

"It's lovely, but it would be far too expensive."

"Nothing's too expensive if it's going to make you look simply marvelous!"

They went inside. Coral fairly propelled Wilda into the shop

"It's just your style. That cunning swathing round the hips—it's the new silhouette, Wilda."

"Mm! Princess type. I know. But what's the good of buying any more things here when we're going direct to Paris?"

"Paris is a long way off. You're forgetting Saturday

ALUMNI PLAN FUND GIFT AT XMAS

Money Is "Back Pay" Owed by University to Discharged Workers

Corliss Lamont, chairman of the alumni committee which raised $3880 for the 19 Harvard scrubwomen who were discharged a year ago, plans to distribute the money to the women before Christmas

Lamont a member of the class of '24, communicated with Tolford E. Dudley, president of the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau and a local member of the committee today and said final plans for the distribution will be made public some time next week.

The money is not being given as a charity, but merely in payment for back wages owed the women by the university, according to Dudley.

The women were discharged by Harvard officials after they had been ordered to increase the wages of the scrubwomen under the minimum wage laws.

Making the Most of Today's Dollar

Stores Which Co-operate With Their Employes Win Patronage

(The thirteenth of a series of interviews with Massachusetts women leaders, giving their suggestions to those who buy goods and to those who sell them, concerning their mutual and vital problem of procuring and giving full value in every particular for every dollar spent. The fourteenth will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Evening American.

By MRS. WILLIAM J. McDONALD

Director, Sixth District, State Federation of Women's Clubs

I BELIEVE more women today are interested in making their incomes go as far as they can than have given this subject thought in some time. Perhaps we do not all feel that we can spend as much as we did, but the business depression has not affected a large group who should now help others as well as themselves by stocking up on staples that have not been so low in 15 years as they are today.

The opportunity to help in this present situation has never been so forcibly put to us as it is being put today when we pick up newspapers and see page after page of wonderful values advertised at prices that make it a harvest time for wise buying.

MRS. WILLIAM J. McDONALD

Staples in clothing, household furnishings, furniture and other commodities are lower now than we have seen them for a long time, and economical women recognize this fact.

If women have a civic duty to perform in buying now the stores also have a civic duty to perform in keeping their help and letting the public know it.

I feel much better about trading with any store when I know they are treating their women help squarely. Any store that advertises that it is helping its personnel at such a time as this is building up women's confidence to a point that cannot be estimated in dollars. Public spirited women and fair minded shoppers will choose that store to patronize when buying, it seems to me.

(44 cash prizes, aggregating $550, are offered to college attendants, members of the Women's Trade Union League, retail store employes and office workers, for the best, brief letters commenting on any ten articles in this series. For further information write the Shopping Economics Editor, care of the Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq.)

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

BIG BUSINESS ERA PREDICTED BY CURLEY

Unemployment Crisis Passed in Boston, Mayor Tells Economists

Unemployment in Boston is fading and prospects for great prosperity in 1931 were never brighter, according to Mayor Curley's message to his round table of college professors, expert economists and civic and labor leaders at the Parker House

The Mayor said that the city would have spent over $4,000,000 for poor relief by Dec. 31, the largest total in any year of the city's history, he promised that there would be a cash surplus in the municipal treasury Jan. 1.

There will be no extraordinary demand on the city treasury in spite of the fact that in 1930 a total of [illegible] of public improvements will be made, he declared, and that it was quite evident that the city's payroll for the year 1931 would be greatly increased.

BUSINESS GAINS REPORTED

Mayor Curley's reports received from leading industrial firms of Boston and from the banks, showed that the average [illegible] of the city was quite evident that the city's payroll for the year 1931 would be greatly increased.

Reading reports from a number of leading industrial firms, the mayor declared that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. at Fore River plans a business increase of [illegible] over the year 1929, and that it will have [illegible] work for [illegible] men, for the next two years, more or less. Other firms which reported bright prospects for the year were the Walter Baker Chocolate Co., Mead Morrison Co., Boston Woven Hose New England Confectionery, B. F. Sturtevant, Tew Brothers, now working on a new four basin Salada Tea Co., Page, Farmer's Candy Co., Schrafft's, Windsor, Walker Pratt, Simplex Wire and the Ford Motor Co.

FORD PLANT BUSY

The Ford plant in Somerville, the mayor said, expects to retain the employment peak the first of Jan., now stating [illegible] next year.

Other speakers at the conference were Chairman Sumner H. Hall of the Overseers of Public Welfare, Dr. Benjamin Seaman, one of the Jewish charities and philanthropists, Prof. Arthur A. Wooster of Tufts, Prof. Joseph H. Beale of Harvard, Prof. Frank W. Spears of Northeastern and William J. Taylor of the public welfare overseers.

Somerville Job Officials Named

Chairman John C. O'Malley of Somerville Unemployment Relief Committee, after a conference with Mayor John J. Murphy, has appointed Augustus C. Kiley of 19 Berkeley st., Somerville, engineer of the publicity committee. William J. Roche of 79 Governor Winthrop rd., was named chairman of the subcommittee on temporary employment.

TRUSTEES ABSOLVE HOSPITAL ATTACHES IN LIQUOR SHORTAGE

LEAKAGE IS BLAMED FOR HUGE LOSS

Statement by Trustees After Meeting Declares No Evidence of Liquor Theft

The missing 2700 gallons of alcohol and 23 gallons of whiskey, in the police shipment of seized liquor to the City Hospital, was ascribed to leakage because of long storage, by the City Hospital trustees after a closed hearing.

The trustees in a typewritten statement, at the end of the hearing, said that when the shipment was received it was apparent there had been much leakage, and for this reason the Federal checkup was asked, which resulted in the following report:

"Received from the police department: Alcohol, 5800 gallons; whiskey, 66.8 gallons."

The trustees interviewed Acting Supt Dr James W Manary, Dr Charles I Gilligan, executive assistant, and Chief Apothecary A. F. Kirk and found no evidence of any loss through theft, they reported

SIX YEARS IN STORAGE

Dr. Manary later explained that some of the cases of alcohol had been stored at police stations for five or six years, becoming rusty and causing considerable leakage

No explanation was made in the statement of the trustees of absence of 28 out of 360 bottles of whiskey which were supposed to have been shipped to the hospital

The trustees' statement follows:

"The permit to receive alcohol and whiskey from the Boston police department called for 8555 gallons of alcohol and 90 gallons of whiskey.

"It became apparent upon delivery by the police department to the authorities of the City Hospital that the boxes containing alcohol and the drums and cases of whiskey had been subject to leakage because of previous long storage.

LOSS IS APPARENT.

"Accordingly the federal authorities were asked to state the exact amount of alcohol received. After several days' examination by two inspectors in the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol it has been certified as follows:

"'The following amount of alcohol and whiskey received from the police department: Alcohol, 5800 gallons; whiskey, 66.8 gallons. Amount of alcohol medicated in the presence of inspectors, 5700 gallons.'

"At a meeting of the trustees held today, those in charge of the delivery and receiving of the alcohol were interviewed and no evidence was represented that showed any of the alcohol was lost through theft, and the trustees are satisfied that the difference in amount was due solely to the condition of the containers."

Police Give $2153 to Aid Unemployed

Patrolman John F. Lyons, aide to Commissioner Hultman, today presented $2153 to Mayor Curley for the relief of the unemployed of Boston. The money was contributed by police during November and similar sums will be donated by them each of the next three months.

Boston Gets Its First 1930 Christmas Tree Shipment

"GREETINGS from the White Mountains"—that's the catch-line on card attached to every Christmas tree, the first of the season, to arrive in Boston from New Hampshire. The carloads of trees in the Boston & Maine Railroad yards, near North Station, are being quickly unloaded. These trees come from the Colebrook, N. H., environs. Get your tree early.

MISS KAE DORGAN, of Roxbury, reading the red tag found on each tree as a greeting from the White Mountains.

GREEN HOLIDAY FOR BOSTON

It looks like a "green" Christmas.

That conclusion, however, is based only on the huge shipments of Christmas trees arriving over the Boston & Maine railroad from northern points.

The cutting of New England trees this year will reach close to the 7,000,000 mark, officials estimate, with a large percentage shipped out to points west and south.

But Boston is the heaviest market for them, however, and the market was well stocked in preparation for the annual rush.

New Hampshire dealers introduced a novelty with their shipments this year in a little red tag to inform the public that the trees were cut from sections where cutting is not harmful but helpful to other trees.

HULTMAN GIVES LIVINGSTON ANOTHER CHANCE IN CHARLESTOWN

81 OFFICERS IN POLICE SHAKEUP

Commissioner Criticizes Failure to Cope With the Liquor Conditions

Flaying liquor conditions in Charlestown and implying that Capt. William W. Livingston of the City sq. station was getting one more chance to "clean up" there, Police Commissioner Hultman last night ordered the long-awaited department shake-up which involved 81 officers.

Centering all his criticism on the City sq. division, the commissioner made it plain that he was extremely dissatisfied with liquor conditions in Charlestown and indicated a drive against vice in that section would get under way.

SERGEANTS SHIFTED

Five sergeants were removed from the station for alleged failure in cleaning up speakeasies. The five replacements should help Capt. Livingston in the drive, the commissioner stated, and added that further changes would be immediately forthcoming unless things were quiet in the district.

It was implied that Capt. Livingston might be afforded his chance.

When the news regarding the reported for duty today, Capt. Livingston instructed them to pull out and prosecute wherever they saw a violation of the law.

Fifty-seven patrolmen, 19 sergeants and one lieutenant were transferred, one sergeant was retired, and the leaders on the civil service list for sergeancy were promoted. Some of the changes were effective today, while others go into operation Monday.

17 FOR SLEUTH WORK

Seventeen special officers from various stations are to report to Deputy Supt. McDevitt for course of instruction in detective work.

No additional special officers will be [illegible] Hultman said, but the men may be temporarily recalled by their captains.

It is believed that the many changes are apt to bring about harmony between the detective force and the uniformed men. In the future captains will often be compelled to call in the detective force for investigation. Due to friction, such request never have been made before.

The flying squadron was hard hit in the shakeup. Thirteen members of the squadron, which has remained practically intact since its organization some years ago by Capt. Livingston, were transferred.

A transfer causing considerable comment was that of Patrolman James J. Driscoll from the bureau back to the East Boston station where he was a specialist officer of more than 15 years. He is adjudged one of the most brilliant detectives in Boston, and has an enviable record.

For the first time in the history of the department, a man and wife are assigned to the same unit and may work together on cases. The unusual situation resulted with the transfer of Special Officer Irma Bombach Jr., from the Joy st station to the bureau of criminal investigation, where his wife, Miss Irene Bombach, has been a policewoman for several years.

The Longwood "man-ferret" is Patrolman John J. Gilooly, who goes from the separate duty office to the bureau of criminal investigation. With him is Sergt. William J. Lacey and Justin McCarthy and Joseph L. Willard and Patrolman Paul V. Crowley.

THREE PROMOTED

The three patrolmen who were promoted to sergeants are John J. Chamnis of the Lagrange st station, who goes to Hanover st; Donald B. Balzarini of East Dedham st station, Jamaica Plain and Herbert R. Schultz of Dorchester st station to Charlestown.

Sergt. Michael F. Hinds, also here, to the only person for many years having reached the retirement age of 65 was duly pensioned this year after 26 years of service.

Patrolman Daniel F. Curran, of the Back Bay station, goes back to the bureau of criminal investigation to begin the drug squad. Other patrolmen shifted to this unit for general work include Thomas P. Turley, of the Joy st station; Salvatore DiNatale of the City Point station and Hans Rasmussen and Raymond Thayer, of the Charlestown station.

Xmas Fund Show Tonight Blazes Popular Price ↕ Trail Which All Boxing Clubs Are Certain to Follow

Much at Stake for Risko and Maloney

This is just on the scarboard bow—Yo Ho, and a bottle of [illegible] Carlson at Schmidt shows you how our little boy, Christmas Fund 1930, was grown thanks to the "nourishment" [illegible] football and hockey games, wrestling and boxing [illegible] staged. But if Christmas Fund, 1930, is going to be a real help to us Mr. Claus, we'll have to grow double muscles tonight, tonight a great Maloney-Risko bout in the Garden [illegible] Look, the wolves from the doors of [illegible] hundreds of deserving poor [illegible] unemployment situation has created. Now certainly not in [illegible] hasty [illegible] wolves [illegible] [illegible].

It is up to you, fans and fanettes, up to you to say just how many of those wolves are going to be chased from the door, up to you how many Merry Christmases Santa Claus will endorse, up to you whether [illegible] into gloom [illegible] hopes up to you how many pairs of shoes will be bought for lost sap and blistered from trudging the streets looking so long for a job; up to you how many wrinkles will be erased from worried brows, how many tired, discouraged eyes will be lighted up with hope on Christmas cheer; up to you how many beds of pain and suffering will be softened, up to you whether all of Boston's poor are going to be given a Merry Christmas, or whether hundreds, perhaps thousands of aged men and women, little children, honest, ordinarily hard-working fellow-beings now out of a job, will continue to look mournfully out of chilled, gloomy windows for a Santa Claus, who never will come.

George Underwood

We're not asking you to give a single, solitary penny to the Christmas Basket Fund. We're only requiring you that if you walk up to the Garden box office and plank down your fifty cents, one, two or three dollars, you're going to see the greatest boxing show ever staged at popular prices.

Then it will warm your heart a bit to know that part of the money you pay for the big boxing bonanza, through the Christmas Fund, is going to some poor Merry Christmas.

Did you ever see a sporting attraction like the Maloney-Risko shinds staged at a $1 top?

You bet your life you didn't.

And fans we're helping you to your such shows at popular [illegible] Through the good [illegible] Basket Fund [illegible] now [illegible] a [illegible] tonight, the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN is leading the popular price trail for others to follow.

[illegible] make the Garden bulge out at the sides with loads of you tonight, and convince the Garden directors and boxing managers that a "reasonable profit can be earned through popular price shows, why naturally the Garden will put on more popular price shows. As the Garden goes, so will go the other sporting clubs of Boston and the old Bay State.

AN EVEN SPLIT

So fans, we leave it to you, are we begging you, asking you for anything? Are we not sharing things with you, "fifty-fifty?"

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN is giving you the greatest show ever staged at popular prices and blazing the popular price trail for other promoters to follow.

The fans, who will flock to the big arena, tonight—and may the Old B's give the seven years itch to anyone who calls himself a fan and stays away—are giving the Christmas Basket Fund a wee bit of each dollar that is turned into the box office.

Fans and Fund are in it, share and share alike, tonight.

Johnny Risko, Jim Maloney, Marty Gallagher, Gene Stanton and the other boxers now are ready to Say It With Socks. They are going to give you a run for your money, don't worry.

When Johnny Risko climbs into the ring the fellow in the opposite corner invariably reels all sail and prepares for a hurricane.

The only time Johnny Risko ever disappointed any of the boxing customers was in bouts which were abruptly abbreviated by a foul.

There will be no foul, tonight. Both boxers will be equipped with the Taylor protector which makes it impossible for one boxer to manoeuvre another with a low blow.

The battle will be decided by a knockout or will go 10 rounds to a decision.

ONE YEAR AGO

Only one year ago Johnny Risko knocked Jim Maloney colder than a landlady's heart.

How many boxers do you know who were knocked out by an opponent and then came back and whipped their erstwhile conqueror? Few, mighty few.

That is only in answer to those who think Jim Maloney "packed a soft one" in agreeing to box Risko.

"Johnny Risko is all washed up," another sceptic says sotto voce.

They said Johnny Risko was "washed up" before he met Otto Von Porat here in Boston. Opinion was so widespread Risko was washed up that Von Porat was given a white flock of profitable matches in New York, Chicago and elsewhere. What happened? The "washed up" Risko gave the hard-hitting Von Porat such a shellacking that poor Otto never got over it.

So watch out, you fellows who are so sure sure that Johnny Risko is all washed up. Watch out Shamus Maloney, if you, too, think Johnny is ready for the cleaners. He may give you a worse licking than he gave Jack Sharkey and Otto Von Porat. Records show that Johnny invariably has fought his best fights after he has fought his worst one. He lost on a foul to Dick Daniels in his last start here. He can't lose on a foul, tonight.

Personally we fear Johnny Risko has caught Jim Maloney in a bad mood—bad for Johnny.

Maloney is of the temperamental type whose shooting [illegible] depends on mood. Any man Jim Maloney thinks he can whip he will come pretty close to whipping. Shamus's bout with the giant Carnera gave the valiant chappie from South Boston a world of confidence. Read after taking the giant Englishman Shamus can't figure how an ordinary mere mortal has any chance with him at all!

Confidence was all that was needed, perhaps is all that still is needed, to make Jim Maloney heavyweight champion of the world.

With a fortune figuratively at stake in tonight's encounter, does it look as if there was any possibility of either Maloney or Risko "selling out" or not giving every ounce of effort and energy to win?

Not by the proverbial jugfull!

Fans, the battle between Jim Maloney, conqueror of Carnera, and Johnny Risko, Cyclone from the West, will warm the cockles of our hearts.

Those of you who tonight will help pack Boston Garden as ever before will help warm many a cold fireside and cheer many a saddened heart on Christmas.

PAIR READY FOR CLASH TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

The march to the Boston Garden to see Jim Maloney and Johnny Risko in a 10-round punching fight tonight is on. From every section of New England boxing fans have started the drive which will result in a capacity crowd when Shamus and Rubbery Jawn let loose their thunderous wallops.

Meanwhile Maloney and Risko are anxiously awaiting a whirl into action. They are on edge and the sound of the opening gong cannot come too quickly for the rival thumpers.

Jack Conway

Betting on the bout is at even money, Maloney is the sentimental favorite but many of the big local betors like Risko's chances of victory.

Then there is the $10,000 Cleveland pool which will be placed on Risko tonight.

It will be the third time Maloney and Risko have collided. Their first tussle was staged at the Boston Garden and resulted in a victory for Maloney on points after ten hectic round of mulling. Risko felt at the time he was entitled to the verdict.

In the second tussle, which took place at Cleveland, Risko came roaring out of his corner in the opening session like a new Dempsey. He punched Maloney around the ring, and in the second frame sent a crashing knockout sock to Maloney's chin.

Risko Confident He Will Land Knockout

Risko feels he will come through with another knockout victory tonight. He has been training at a camp on the shores of Lake Erie. He is in the best condition of his career. It is his intention to set a

Under the present plan, football will not be abolished from the intramural sports of Loyola University, President Kelley said. Instead, he explained, it will be encouraged and a department of physical training will be organized to care for the needs of the entire student body.

Loyola played a full football schedule during the past season, meeting Boston College and Georgetown, among others.

Chick Meehan Picks Notre Dame to Defeat U. S. C.

IRISH MUST RESORT TO AERIAL GAME

By J. F. (CHICK) MEEHAN
Head Football Coach at N. Y. U.
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

New York, Dec. 5—I expect Notre Dame to defeat Southern California tomorrow in one of the hardest struggles of this season or any season.

To achieve the victory Notre Dame will have to resort to the forward pass, it seems to me. The Trojan line, while decidedly powerful on defense, is weak and probably not as well satisfied to worry with end runs, and in game after game they have played the full 60 minutes throwing less than four passes.

It will probably be different Saturday. Last year, in their contest at the Rose Bowl, Southern California crossed up the Eastern team—Pittsburgh—by passing it to death, but this will not work with Notre Dame, as one of their strongest defenses is against the forward pass.

There is no chance of either team cracking, and a high score resulting, as both teams have been preparing for this meeting all season, and have known all along that this would be their hardest game.

The final Saturday of the football season, instead of being one of uninteresting games, is to be one of many thrills, where the teams meeting are such that the final rating of great elevens depends on the outcome. On the Pacific coast and Atlantic coast are to be played two games which will have a championship bearing.

Notre Dame Will Prove to Be Greatest Team

If Notre Dame beats Southern California at Los Angeles, there is no doubt of that team being the greatest of the year and perhaps of all time. And if Colgate decisively beats N. Y. U. at the Yankee Stadium, that team will have a claim to Eastern supremacy which few can challenge.

In looking over the records of the Notre Dame and Southern California teams we find that one point in one game in the case of each team has made a tremendous difference in the setting and interest of this classic.

Southern California earlier in the year was licked 7 to 6 by Washington State which since has become the Pacific Coast champion. Southern California outplayed this great state team but nevertheless was licked by the one point.

The loss of that point has kept Southern California submerged for the greater part of the season.

Game Ought to Be Duel of Backfields

Rockne has, a group of boys on his squad known as the Southern California aggregation, and he keeps them on constant signal practice. Howard Jones does the same thing with a Notre Dame team on his squad.

There isn't any doubt but that both coaches know each other's stuff. There will be two great quarterbacks directing the play in Carideo and Duffield, an interesting backfield duel between Pinckert and Schwartz, the latter considered the best running back of 1930.

U. S. C. 13-10 Favorite Over Irish in New York

New York, Dec. 5—A flood of U. S. C. money sent by California clients to New York betting commissioners has made the Trojan eleven a strong favorite to halt the march of Notre Dame at Los Angeles tomorrow.

A week ago the game was an even money proposition. Today Southern California is the choice at 13 to 10.

Notre Dame's close call against Army, and the prediction of every Big Ten coach and several Eastern mentors that the Trojans will win tomorrow, have emboldened U. S. C. rooters. They are laying even money that the Ramblers lose by one touchdown.

Notre Dame on the Short End in Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 5 (AP)—As far as Chicago bookmakers are concerned, Notre Dame was on the short end of 10 to 8 odds for its game with Southern California at Los Angeles Saturday.

Being a short-ender in Chicago betting was something new for Notre Dame, the Irish having been favorites in every battle since the 1928 season.

Joe Levis to Lead U. S. Fencing Team

Joe Levis of the B. A. A. national foils and three weapon champion of 1929, a product of the North End and a graduate of M. I. T., will lead a representative team of United States fencers in the second international fencing competition against Canada at the New York Fencers' Club, this Friday night.

BRAINS AND BRAWN OF NOTRE DAME QUARTET

READY TO RIP UP U. S. C., Dan Hanley, sophomore fullback, who carries 195 pounds on a six foot one inch frame, and Frank Carideo, who is no midget, but who supplies the strategy for the Fighting Irish. Hanley will start at fullback with the loss of Savoldi and Mullins. Carideo will be at his old post, quarterback, when N. D. clashes with the tanned stalwarts of Southern California. This contest will be the outstanding grid battle of the year. Owing to the loss of Mullins from the Irish squad, Southern California is now a 10-to-8 favorite. But Rockne's Irish have always pulled the unexpected, and are a good short end to win tomorrow.

Minors Need Help of Majors, Says Branch Rickey

Montreal, Dec. 5 (AP)—The current depression in minor league baseball cannot with justice be blamed on major league ownership in the smaller circuits, in the opinion of Branch Rickey, vice-president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, expressed at the annual banquet of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Rickey entered into an extensive explanation of the majors' business connections with the minors and asserted it was only because of major league support that a number of minor leagues were able to keep their heads above water.

Pointing out that 13 minor leagues had gone on the rocks since 1926, he said that none of these circuits had the benefit of major league support while every league to which major league aid had been given still was in operation.

Asserting that the majors had not forced their way into the minors, but had been invited to come to their aid, Rickey said that the resultant improvement in financial management had established these leagues on a sounder basis and virtually assured their permanency.

Cobb Would Buy Phils if the Price Was Right

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 5 (INS)—"At the right price I might be interested in buying the Philadelphia National league franchise."

This was the reply received today from Ty Cobb, former big league star, when he was questioned regarding the possibility of his taking over the Phillies club.

Cobb revealed that for the past two years he has been "looking for a club."

Baseball Meeting Comes to a Close

Montreal, Dec. 5 (AP)—The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues brought its 29th annual convention to a close today with a short session devoted to routine matters.

A committee to revise and clarify the regulations of the National Association agreement was appointed with J. H. Farrell of Auburn, N. Y., secretary and treasurer of the National Association, as chairman.

The association passed resolutions of regret over the deaths of William F. Baker president of the Philadelphia Nationals; James McGraw, of Toledo; Julius C. Heinman, of New Orleans; Michael J. Hawkins, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., and Robert Farrell of Hartford.

The 1931 convention will be held in West Baden, Ind., Dec. 3, 4 and 5.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, dropped in to hello Mr. Boston.

What do you think about the probable outcome of your bout with Maloney tonight? asked the veteran.

Mr. Boston

I'll knock him out in the second round, replied Risko.

I hopped from a bank in Pennsylvania into the fight game, volunteered Manion. I prefer making money to counting it. My parents were both Italians. As Calabria (Antonio) and Petrolecort (Mario) in ring sports are also Italians, maybe Tate is going to be kind to me, would I, Marty Gallagher at the Garden tonight.

We must be rolling along, interrupted MacFarland. "Well see you at the Garden tonight and don't forget Johnny is going to knock Maloney right into Dan Carroll's lap."

Piazza and Oster Will Give Action

Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Garden has lopped Mr. Boston's cuticle this week, when Oster Piazza Point middleweight and Wm. Oster sport trunks in the ring.

"Piazza and Oster love to punch" chirped MacLean "It is a cinch this bout will end with a knockout."

Willie Corbett to Be Honored at Banquet

Mr. Boston's attention has been called to a banquet which is to be tendered in honor of Representative William P. Corbett of Somerville at the Parker House on December 17 at 7 p.m. Chairman William J. Reen and Treasurer Dennis L. Dean are looking for a large gathering.

"Representative Corbett, hailing as Willie Corbett, was one of the leading boxers in New England a decade ago," said Mr. Boston. "He turned to the ring to earn his way through Tech and the Harvard Law School. Corbett is a member of the bar and also in the House of Representatives. He is one of the members of the committee which has been investigating boxing and wrestling.

10 Bouts Expected at Golden Glove Tourney

"Bills Cuddy tells me there will be 10 bouts at the Golden Glove tournament at Mechanics Building tomorrow night. The best of the local simon pures have entered and some red hot battles are expected.

There will be matches at 112, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

"I understand that amateur boxing has proved as popular with the ladies that Cuddy now has a special seating reserved for the fair sex at his Saturday night shows.

"Tom Kanaly writes that the B. A. A. will stage another amateur boxing tournament at its clubhouse on Exeter st. on December 17. There will be bouts for novices at 118 and 126 pounds, while the 126, 147 and 160-pound divisions will be open ones."

MALONEY AND RISKO READY

furious pace from the opening gong. He believes Maloney will rush and that the South Paw will be open to leave openings as a result of the winning wallop as he breezes through.

In the event he wins Risko says he will be prepared to step to the Primo Carnera or Jack Sharkey. Either of these signees will find Risko 5 pounds heavier and a confident incentive to send him over at a wide clip, Risko says.

Maloney to Punch It Out With His Rival

Maloney told this writer today he intends to punch it out with Risko tonight.

"I'll admit Risko knocked me out in two rounds at Cleveland," said Jim, with great frankness. "I do not intend to offer any alibi for that defeat. I merely wish to state I am in the best of condition, and quite certain I shall gain the victory tonight.

"I intend to strive for a knockout. I will not be satisfied to win on points. I want to flatten Risko and get revenge for some of the unkind remarks he has made about me recently.

"I believe I am a better puncher than Risko. Let him stand up and swap blows with me tonight, and he won't go three rounds.

"I am in better shape than I was even for Carnera. This means trouble for Takathe John."

The 10-round semifinal will bring together Gene Stanley of Cleveland a member of the Danny Dunn outfit, and Marty Gallagher of Lowell, who will carry the Dan Carroll colors into action.

The preliminary card will feature a flock of local boys, who will blaze away with both hands.

MARIE DRESSLER AND POLLY MORAN TO BE STARRED IN 'TISH' SERIES

RINEHART STORIES IN FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Dec. 5—Did you ever read the fascinating "Tish" series by Mary Roberts Rinehart? If you did you know that "Tish" has become almost a flesh and blood person. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have purchased the entire series for Marie Dressler and Polly Moran.

Mrs. Rinehart might have had Marie in mind when she created "Tish." With Marie Dressler now in the class with Norma Shearer, Marion Davies, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford and their other box office favorites, M. G. M. is looking ahead for the right stories for her.

Louella O. Parsons

Someone who sneaked into a preview of "Reducing" tells me it has even better comedy moments than "Min and Bill." Marie has been fortunate in her pictures.

The last I heard of Anita Louise she was posing at the Tiffany Studios and being exploited as their great discovery. I find that Anita Louise has now been signed by Charles Rogers on a five years' contract. I suppose since she is only 15 her mother put her name to the necessary papers. Anita Louise's first role for Charles Rogers is "Millie's" daughter in "Millie." Now she is to be groomed for stardom and John Emerson has been commissioned to write an original for her. Lucky child, Anita Louise.

I CONFESS I am more interested in Gary Cooper this moment than in any other one of our young juvenile players. Gary has never had just the right chance he deserves but with what opportunities he has had he has come through with flying colors. I hear it whispered that he will be co-starred with Clive Brook in a gangster picture. I'd like to see those two together. I'd like to see Clara in a big picture and I'd like to see Gary Cooper get his chance.

All forces at Pathe, so the rumor goes, are busy trying to get stories that will please Ann Harding. Ann Harding, it is pretty well understood, has been having some very serious confabs with the powers that be out at the Pathe studio. She refuses to make pictures that will not help her box office. We hear on very good authority that "The House of Glass" has been purchased by Pathe from Universal for her, and that this story is one that will give her the right emotional opportunities.

If a census of Hollywood were taken you'd find that some of the most important people out here were born Scotchman. There is Wallace Smith, who gave the Hearst papers many a scoop in the old days when he was a star reporter. Wallace is now one of the chief writers at R. K. O. He has just signed a new contract to stay another year, but before he begins work he is taking a vacation in Europe and his young wife will take a trip to Europe. They go about once every two years, say what you will, you do get in a rut in Hollywood. You get too used to the sunshine, too used to meeting the same people, and too used to talking movies. Everyone should get away.

Pretty, attractive Mary Doran is on the Fox lot. She has been brought there to play one of the leading feminine characters in "This Modern World." Mary usually plays the wicked vamp and does it so convincingly she has every woman in the audience hoping her husband or sweetie won't meet a girl as alluring. Louise Fazenda, who hurried back from Palm Springs to report for work, is at Paramount where she is supporting Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. Louise has a following all her own and is admittedly valuable in any picture she plays.

VENITA GOULD ON PROGRAM

Mimicking George M. Cohan started Venita Gould, who will give entertaining versions of famous theatrical people at the RKO Keith - Boston tomorrow and next week, on her career "Edwarded" vaudeville head lining honors. Not that the star wasn't in vaudeville before she attempted impersonations but it was her imitation of Cohan, mischievously interpolated in the skit set she had been doing for years, which first introduced Miss Gould as an unusual impersonation artist, and paved the way to stellar honors.

Venita Gould

"The sister act I was doing at the time became rather boring to me, so one day I borrowed a cane, decided to do a George M. Cohan number to freshen up the act, and, to my amazement, found that it stopped the show," said Miss Gould. "So I just naturally kept that number in. Then the idea occurred to me to add another impersonation, and I chose Bert Williams. That too proved such a successful number, that my part of the act soon got to be one of impersonations only.

SHUBERT STAR IN CAST

Vivid memories of the stage are recalled with the presence of Audrey Maple, noted beauty and important part of Queenie in Smith's musical hit at the Shubert. It was she who startled the world some years back with the presentation on the stage of the famous "soul kiss" in "The Love Waltz." She will be remembered as the star of "Madame Sherry" and with Donald Brian in "Her Regiment." Some of her other plays have been "Peggy," "The Firefly," "High Jinks"

MARXIAN FUN BUBBLES UP AT MET

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

MARX MANSHIP THAT I'S laughters be done with every Wisecrack of the uproarious trio of mirth is the keynote for the Metropolitan bill for the new film week. Those irrepressible Marx Brothers, for many generous minutes hold the stage in person and keep you chuckling and guffawing until the rubber's gone. They're better in old-fashioned vaudeville. The harmonic and musical cracks, as well as the nonsensical ones, are more at home on the boards than on the screen. Groucho, Harpo and Chico are still funny, mostly funny, with intervals now and then that seem rather good in new spots, but generally we like our Marx in their usual tone.

If there's a serious beatable, it's when Groucho is one bet, for Groucho's like a sergeant the chief cook in the Marxian deal, let the credit go. Filled and out comes Harpo to pump a few for a hustle, Bippo to a beer light, possibly for he is also the bouncer of the fraternal quartette. To the sad extra nothing is left of the original mad laugh provoker. They're their old selves in financial effort, the original Marx parlor are all stellar. This season holidays, a week that you can't get to miss at the Met.

ALL ELSE ON the bill seems subordinated in the light of the topline stars. The feature picture, "Along Came Youth" however is brimming with comedy. Charles "Buddy" Rogers is now in wee and wise in a way to endear all flapper hearts. Stanley Dale is the very sweet Dale in the case. Evelyn Brent is cast to record her best efforts, the original Marx parlor are all stellar. This season holidays, a week that you can't get to miss at the Met.

COPELAND IN CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

Ernest Copeland pianist who has a number of times been heard in this city, has been acclaimed the popular favorite of the season's concert audience, more than ordinarily well received in his recital given last night in Jordan Hall. Mr. Copeland's program was made up of new numbers by composers of the present day, with the exception of a group of songs by Schubert, Liszt and Chopin, which were played with a delicacy of touch and a tonal quality that made them stand out in bold relief from the rest of the program.

A third of the program was made up of new Spanish pieces, in which rhythm and brilliance and color were the principal elements. Three numbers by Joaquin Turina, in which a Spanish dance, a Seguidilla and a Fandanguillo were played, were followed by three numbers by Manuel de Falla, in which the same forms were used. Then came three numbers by Enrique Granados, including the well known "Danza Triste" and "Goyescas." The opening group was composed of pieces by modern composers. While the numbers by Mr. Copeland were not unpleasing, they were not of the same quality as the Spanish numbers. Three numbers by Cyril Scott, including the well known "Lotus Land," and three by Arnold Bax, in which a style Copeland has been known to adopt, were the first numbers on the program. The closing group was composed of pieces by Debussy and Ravel. While the numbers by Mr. Copeland were not unpleasing, they were not of the same quality as the Spanish numbers. Three numbers by Cyril Scott, including the well known "Lotus Land," and three by Arnold Bax, in which a style Copeland has been known to adopt, were the first numbers on the program. FILM TO RUN THIRD WEEK AT KEITH'S Marking a new high in motion picture showmanship, the camera was employed as a cashier in photographing Sue Takes a Holiday," Constance Bennett starring production, which will be held over another week at RKO Keith's.

Instead of using several cameras to film action simultaneously from various angles Director Paul Sloane used a separate angle for each scene. As a result the number of camera shots and amount of printing paper was lessened.

To emphasize a scene taken for Connie's new Stage Show, needed in keeping the following smoothly. The camera was mounted on a portable car and thus followed the players about a setting or moved from a long view to a close-up without a break in the action.

The stage scenes were used only on a few of the latest settings where one of Connie's quartet of dances are given and the atmosphere. Neil Hamilton is the star, John Mescall one of Hollywood's foremost cameramen photographed the production.

Ruth Draper to Give Special Matinee Today

Ruth Draper will give an extra matinee this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, presenting sketches not given at her previous engagement here this week. Colorful Woolens for the Week-End

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL from JAYS, INC.

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10.30 a. m.

HARDY SOULS who continue to face their week-ends countryward regardless of winter blasts sometimes find themselves hard put to find room for bulky warm clothes in the suitcase. When the necessary quota of sweaters, jackets and other cozy gadgets are packed there is little room left for fineries. Not that many fineries are necessary—but there must be a costume or two that is a pleasing change from the sturdier clothes of the field.

NOT EVEN the cleverest week-end hostess can arrange the weather to the desired sunniness. Often many an hour must be spent indoors by a roaring fire, so it behooves a guest to include a smart costume for a day perforce spent inside. Heavy tweeds of the sort worn outdoors are extremely uncomfortable within. Fortunately there is the lighter weight woolen frock to come to the rescue.

THE LIGHTWEIGHT wool that you take to the country should not be confused with the more elaborate woolen that you wear daytimes in town. Just as there is a line socially between town and country tweeds—just so is there a difference in lightweight woolens. Your country woolen should be a bright, trimly made affair. It admits a scarf or tailored collar, but it never wears frills. One or two-piece, it can save you space in that jammed suitcase by traveling out with you beneath your fur or tweed topcoat.

THE SPORTS frock pictured is fashioned of knit crochet wool, horizontally striped in wood shades of red, green, yellow and black, and fastens on left side with rows of buttons. The skirt has two inverted pleats of the frock, the belt is of red woven wool with silver metal buckle. The white pique collar is very chic. The hat is of green knit wool fabric, draped to brim held by grosgrain ribbon. The necklace of twisted vari-color beads, and the bag of vividly toned Spanish leather, complete an ideal frock for week-end wearing.

WITH BACKGAMMON pushing contract bridge to the side, it is not a great worry to find a way to entertain week-end guests by day or night. With a backgammon board, excellent food and colorfully garbed guests—any house party has an excellent start toward a tremendous success.

THE LAST MILE -:- -:- -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 13

"ALL RIGHT—won't quarrel. But I'm betting she a flighty, said Ethel. I'm betting their romance is so red hot that it will just burn out and die away to a black ember."

"Do you know anything about her, Sid?"

"I know her name and where she lives, if——"

"Oh, do be serious, Sid."

But he led the talk to other things and was mighty uncomfortable over the fact that Sue seemed to like the girl.

To his surprise, next day, he saw Ethel Simmons at the trial. She was with Mrs. Shelton.

Had he but known all that Ethel knew about the case what a sensation he could have enabled District Attorney Arnold to spring in that court room!

They sat well back and after a while Sid thought that Viola saw and recognized Ethel, for she shot her several quick and uneasy glances and finally whispered to Abe Vance. A few moments later he glanced around and saw Ethel. Then he whispered to Viola and shook his head.

Sid Suspicious

Sid became suspicious. What if his hunch had been correct? What if Ethel did know a great deal about the case?

The sensation of this day was to be Viola's story from the witness stand. The one thing that Abe Vance wanted was to have Viola Forsythe tell her story.

It gave the "ash casters" plenty of material. Part of her testimony was about starting out for dinner and dancing up in the country.

"We stopped at Mr. Thurber's cottage," Viola said, speaking with an apparent effort, choking back sobs and eyeing the jury pathetically while she made sure that her shapely legs in their sheer net silk hose were not hidden in any degree whatsoever, "to permit him to get a bottle of liquor that he wanted for the dinner. I went in with him and he attacked me at once. I fought him and pleaded. He laughed at me and then he threatened me with a revolver—I was terribly frightened."

Viola paused to do a little effective sobbing in her back-bordered handkerchief.

Sid Cavanaugh glanced over to Ethel Simmons, and he was just in time to see Ethel nudge Mrs. Shelton as they grinned at each other.

"D n her tricky mean little soul," he muttered. "she got the low down on this and I'm going to state it out of me."

Perhaps later he would have better success than at his first attempt, and scare some of the truth out of her.

Meanwhile he had to listen to Viola's story. Very elegantly she seemed to compose herself from her fit of sobbing and go on with her story.

Viola's Story

"I was afraid Mr. Thurber had been drinking and was—er—inflamed," Viola went on, "and I didn't want to dis—I wanted to be alone for my part foolishness and became a good and almost fainted. I was afraid he would kill me and I tried to take the revolver away from him. It was one of those kind that keeps shooting every time the trigger thing is pulled—I realized this because there was a shot and I almost fainted. I was afraid he had shot me. But I was so frightened that I think I must have been out of mad with fear for I twisted the gun and it went off and then it went off a second time and Mr. Thurber fell through the doorway to the dining alcove. When I saw that I couldn't do anything for him I almost collapsed, but I managed to get back to the city and go straight to the police about it."

Abe Vance's countenance never changed a muscle, but there was a gleam of satisfaction in his eyes as she finished her story.

He questioned her deftly, then about her past. His almost leading questions brought from her the statement that she had only accepted Thurber's invitation, after not seeing him for months, to explain that she had suddenly realized how terribly wicked she had been and how she was determined to live an upright life in the future.

Dist. Atty. Arnold tried his best to break down her testimony, but she knew her story and never varied in it.

She admitted her past with plenty of sobbing and seemingly shamefaced contriteness and she managed to always add, "—but I realized how wrong I had been and I was living a clean life, trying to now."

On another occasion she managed to say, "It seemed that if I let him have his way I'd drift back into the old life and I had rather die than do that."

She said it rapidly. It was ordered stricken out, but this didn't worry Abe Vance in the least, he knew that it couldn't be stricken from the memory of the jurymen.

The prosecution had plenty of facts, plenty of law and plenty of evidence of the past of the woman who had shot and killed Kirk Thurber, Dist. Atty. Arnold bore down heavily, in his plea, on the point that the young woman had no honor to save.

Abe Vance played his best trump just as Sid Cavanaugh knew that he would.

It was a rather wonderful and tearful oration about the girl who had sinned and was struggling to atone. He dragged in Scripture, concerning the greater rejoicing over the recovery of one lost sheep than over the 90 and nine that were safe.

Abe's eloquence and his popular "unwritten law" attitude helped a great deal. So did Viola's beauty and her timid, beseeching smile and her generous display of shapely limbs.

"Not Guilty!"

In 30 minutes the jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

Sid Cavanaugh was disgusted. He knew that Viola Forsythe was as he had said, a hundred times "guilty as h—ll" He was bitter against Merton Nissinger, who had gone up into Canada on a fishing trip solely to get away from the possibility of being dragged into it. He felt that Nissinger could have given testimony to the effect that even at the time Viola killed his pal, Thurber, she and Thurber were maintaining their old relations.

It was then too late.

Out with Dick Walters that evening Sid became morose and disgusted. He drank more than usual and cursed more than customary.

Fortunately he didn't drink so much that he slopped over and used the name of Ethel in Dick's presence—or was it so fortunate?

"I know people, a man and a girl," Sid said, "whose honest testimony would have sent Forsythe straight to the chair."

"Well, for Pete's sake, why didn't you spring it?" Dick asked.

"The man beat it and as for the girl—well, I couldn't pin her down. She's foxy."

"That kind, eh?"

"You'd be surprised," Sid said. He gulped down another drink and looked at his friend curiously. "Yes," he repeated, "you'd be surprised, Dick."

Then he laughed boisterously, which was unusual for him.

"Better let up on that hooch, Sid," Dick advised, "stick to beer, it won't hurt you, it isn't even needled."

Sid sobered a little.

"Aw, well, forget it, Dick—I'm going to."

"If the woman is guilty, why not get another trial with this new evidence?" Dick asked.

Sid laughed.

"You're a good mechanic, Dick, but rather weak on law. Viola Forsythe can never again be tried for the murder of Kirk Thurber, not even if the District Attorney gets iron-clad evidence that she did it deliberately and in cold blood—she has been tried by a jury of her peers—and that's a joke—and found innocent. She cannot be tried again; that would be what is called double jeopardy."

"Oh, well, forget it, Sid."

They went home, but Sid didn't forget it right away. What worried him most of all was the situation between Dick and Ethel. He couldn't let it go on. Ethel didn't seem to be breaking off her affair with Dick as she had promised to do.

The day following Viola Forsythe's dramatic acquittal of the murder charge was a holiday.

Dick Walters drove around to Ethel's home and suggested a drive and a little picnic. He had had a ban per of food put up.

Ethel was quite willing. She was feeling greatly relieved because Viola was freed and now she knew that she couldn't be dragged into it.

Dick was happy again. Ethel seemed unusually gracious. When she saw that he was headed for the country she said, "It will be nice there. Dick awfully nice, only don't tease me about marrying you today, dear—I'm still thinking about it."

"All right, darling, only be sure that when you do let me know, the answer will be 'yes.'"

Dick drove up to a wood road and backed the car in beside a stream that ran down over some rocks to empty in the river below.

"This is a swell place for a little picnic, dearest," Dick said.

Ethel looked around the lovely glade.

"Isn't it lovely," she agreed. "I never knew there was such a beautiful spot."

The truth was, Ethel had been driven there the very first time she met Merl Nessinger, had spent several hours in the place when she was supposed to be with Mrs. Shelton in Hampton, and only recently Merl had taken her up there to discuss the Thurber murder.

Secret Thoughts

However, Ethel wasn't the only one nursing secret thoughts. Dick was remembering several girls he had been running around with who had gone to this secluded spot with him. But now Dick was madly in love and it made him shudder and feel mean just to recall those other girls who were never, he believed, to be even thought of in the presence of so sweet and pure a girl as Ethel Simmons.

They ate the nice luncheon and sat on a smooth ledge in the warm sun, tossing pebbles into the stream. He stretched back in the sunlight and reached for Ethel's hand. She permitted him to hold it. She sat up rather primly at first, but later reclined on her elbow and stared at the spots of sunlight on the water.

It was all Dick could do to restrain himself from sweeping her into his arms in one passionate embrace. The girl appealed to him as he wanted her and he believed that it must be love.

He stroked her hair and it thrilled him but Ethel moved her head.

"I'm going to kiss you," Dick said hoarsely.

"No, Dick, you know I never do that. When, I mean if we are formally engaged you may give me my first lover's kiss."

"Sid. "If dearest, you mean 'when,' and you mean that it will be before long," Dick cried.

"All right, Richard, you're an awful tease—I'll say 'when' we are engaged, then you may kiss me."

He had to be satisfied with this. It was some relief when Ethel announced that she had to go.

He drove her to Hampton and left her at Mrs. Shelton's. There was to be a church lawn party that evening and Ethel, as she explained to him, was on the committee.

Dick drove back to town and home for dinner. He wanted to go out with Sid and play some pool and have some beer, he wanted to forget his great desire for Ethel. But Sid and Cicily were going out to a party.

Dick went down town and had a drink. He decided that he would go to a picture, and did so. When his eyes became accustomed to the dim light he saw that the pretty girl beside him was getting quite friendly. He suggested that they go for a ride. The girl was willing.

They drove down past the lawn party. He hurried on lest Ethel might be coming out of the grounds and see him.

But Ethel was not at the lawn party.

DROUTH RELIEF PLAN ARGUED

Washington, Dec. 5 (INS)—Drought relief legislation of one sort or another probably will be passed by congress before the end of the present session, Senator Robinson (D.), of Arkansas, told the senate yesterday in connection with the agricultural relief bill.

He has been authorizing appropriation of $150,000,000 to be expended for farm relief purposes in the drought stricken areas.

Robinson said hundreds of thousands of farmers are without the usual outside income means of livelihood because of crop failures. Destitution prevailed when Robinson said.

"If we are going to help the farmer make his crop I have no idea—if he is cold and hungry—that he should make it naked, or that his children should be cold and hungry while he is doing it."

McNary asked if such relief would apply only to the stricken area. Robinson said it would, and McNary asked if he did not feel that "limiting food and clothing relief to the drought-stricken areas would be legislation of a local nature."

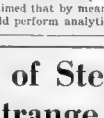
Out of Step in Life's Strange Parade

By WINIFRED BLACK

SO THEY were married—Kitty and Berty, and went to live in the little kitchenette apartment all so new and shiny, and the delicatessen shop right around the corner as handy as you please.

Kitty kept her job downtown, and she and Berty had the fun of their lives going to all the shows and all the parties they could manage to get time to enjoy.



Winifred Black

They knew dozens and dozens of young couples, and single men and single girls. They didn't know much about them except their nick names—only they knew that Jimmie liked gin and Bill preferred rye and Ethel would murder you if you asked her to be the third one to the light of a match for her cigarette.

They knew that Stella had been married twice—no foolin', as Stella always said when she spoke of it, and they knew that Marie was a terrible vamp, and it was never safe to leave your man alone with her for five minutes.

Stella would put him in her pocket and walk away with him before you could ask her who she thought she was.

Berty met an awfully Cute Kid at a party. And the Cute Kid thought Berty was a "Wow." And the nicest thing you know didn't Kitty catch her Berty walking right into a picture as well as hold a brassy, with the Cute Kid, snuggling as close to Berty as she could get, and both of them eating chocolates out of a great big expensive box that Kitty knew her Berty had bought the minute she laid eyes on it.

Well, the next time her Berty telephoned that he was going to the lodge and wouldn't be home to dinner, Kitty cried awfully hard.

And the young fellow in the flat across the hall heard her and came to see what was the matter. Kitty told him all about her Berty and the Cute Kid, and the big expensive box of candy and everything.

And the young fellow said, "gee," and looked awfully sorry and then he said "don't you care, cutie we'll take in a show ourselves."

When she got home her Berty was waiting for her at the head of the stairs and what Berty said to the Young Man across the hall and what the Young Man across the hall said to Berty could never be printed in any respectable newspaper.

Berty was very good and came home on the dot every evening—for a while, but one night he telephoned again and what did Kitty do?

She walked right straight to the telephone and called the young man who was not across the hall any more, but who had by some curious accident, left his new telephone number behind and out stepped Kitty again.

Finally Berty and Kitty were through.

And Kitty, did she marry the young man across the hall?

Well not exactly. You see he had a regular sweetheart up in the country. He was just sorry for Kitty that is all, but he had a friend and the friend thought Kitty was a "well," and Kitty and the friend were married.

They lived together nearly a year. Then the friend drank more than he should and said, Kitty, he didn't see herself penned up in a tank, and she divorced the friend of the young man across the hall.

Then she married a very good looking chap who was floor walker in a really nice shop, but the floor walker knew entirely too many pretty women for Kitty's peace of mind, so the other day Kitty divorced the floor walker.

Berty? He didn't marry his cute kid either—he married her sister, and the sister took Berty to the country and made him go to work in a country store. She stops by for him every night in her little car and he doesn't dare say his soul is his own—but he owns a good little business now —in the country.

And he wouldn't go back to the kitchenette flat for all the Kitties in the world.

Life is a strange parade, isn't it?

What's in Fashion?

Tables Put Sparkle Into Living Rooms

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—Comfort and convenience. Those are two good things that have arrived together with this modern life. Everybody wants them.

And that's one reason why you find so many small tables in convenient spots in fashionable homes. And why so many more will go into homes this Christmas.

Folks have lots of "extras" these days. Useful doo-dabs all about the living room. Cigarette boxes, ash trays, match holders, humidors, lamps. And lots of magazines, books, papers, flowers and things to put flowers in—because we have time to read and look and enjoy life.

We want these things where they're convenient right at our elbows or finger-tips. And that means—small tables that are placed right by the arm chairs or the sofas where we sit.

There are small tables today for almost any place or any use. And they're decorative, too. They put sparkle—vitality — life — into your living room.

Coffee tables, for instance.

Extension Coffee Table

Whether you drink coffee, tea or nothing at all, they're useful—and decorative. In front of the davenport or sofa, or beside a chair, they're a convenient height to hold a cigarette box or ash tray or magazine.

We've had one illustrated above that looks as though it might have been made by our ancestors of 250 years ago. It draws out, too, just as their tables did, and becomes nearly twice as long if needed.

Round Pedestal Table

Then the book table, shown at the left—it can hold a lamp and books and a newspaper, too. Put it beside your favorite chair or at the end of the sofa and sit down to a comfortable evening.

Tables like this are legion. They may have another shelf underneath or a trough for books. Or they may be an entirely different shape.

Pedestal Tables

Pedestal tables may be larger. Like the round pedestal table shown above—copied after one from the England of 150 years ago. Then the chair stands (or does a chair sit?) beside the table—not the table beside the chair.

And by that we mean that the table is big enough and important enough to stand by itself. Only—in the comfort-loving days, a table isn't doing all the work it should if it's not contables were much the same as this.

The Colonial table illustrated below spreads its wings to hold a lot of things—or spreads just one of them and fits the other side snugly by a chair. You'll recognize this as one which the Pilgrim Fathers might have made. The ancestors of the modern table shown aren't so easily recognized. But you will recognize its usefulness . . . and that's why it's fashionable. It's the right height to hold a reading lamp. And if your chair is drawn up beside it, it will hold a lot of things that help make an evening restful.

A Good Modern Table

venient to some chair. So the chair is put beside the table.

There are so many good fashions in small tables! Another one is shown below. It has the curve in the legs—and elsewhere that show it to be of the period of Queen Anne.

Anne was a good hostess, as well as a queen, and she liked to have her guests comfortable and restful. So she'd have found much use for this table if cigarettes and coffee had been the fashion then.

It was snuff and tea in those days—and they had to sit in higher chairs because of their stiff and bulky clothing. So tables weren't quite as low as this modern adaptation for modern life. But the lines of those old

A Card in Better Taste

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Since last Christmas a friend of mine has been married. We were in the habit of giving each other presents each year and I think now that he is married that I should be giving presents to both him and his wife presents. Kindly tell me if this is proper, and what I should do.

It would be far better form for you not to send a Christmas present, but, instead, to send a card to him and his wife. Be sure to address it to both.

An Ill-Advised Plan

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

A young couple are to be married at church. The wedding is to be informal. The bride-to-be has chosen her niece as her attendant. The groom-to-be has a married friend whom he has selected to be his best man. The young couple are very close friends of the best man and his wife. Please give me your opinion as to an invitation extended to the best man requesting him to be the escort of the bridesmaid at a dinner for the "four" without including the best man's wife in the invitation?

CONSTANT READER

While the plan of the choice of attendants is quite correct, it is not good form for the bride and groom to plan to give any entertainment before or after the wedding in which the wife of the best man is not included. It is not necessary for them to invite the wife of the best man to be one of the wedding party, but it certainly would look strange, and be strange, if the "four" had dinner together disregarding the best man's wife.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

They're in Love, But Always Arguing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily column.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6:15 p.m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have been going with a fellow for the last 10 months. He is 19 and so am I.

We are in love with each other but it seems that we are always arguing. He always says we are through for good, but he comes back to me I don't want to leave him because I love him. The idea is that I care for dancing and he does not. He also don't trust me with my chum and he's jealous.

Beatrice Fairfax

BROWN EYES

Dear Brown Eyes—I suggest that the next time he says he's through for good, you make him stick to it. You seem to have very little in common, and continued quarreling is death to any real regard. Jealousy does never-end kill, and it makes life extremely uncomfortable at all times. Let me find another dancing partner—one that you can get on a little better with.

Write Him a Note

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have come to you again for advice, for your former advice worked out just as I hoped it would. I have a young cousin of whom I thought very much. He had taken me out quite a few times and I have had him over to my house. He has recently gone away to college in Philadelphia and he didn't as much as call me to let me know he was going or didn't write a postcard, so he has written to my other cousin who was not the least bit fair with him and said some of the meanest things behind his back and then would call him up on the phone and ask him to get a few fellows and come over for the evening. After which she would laugh at every mistake he made in dancing or otherwise.

M. R. N. E. V.

Dear M. R. N. E. V.: As long as the boy is your own cousin, which sent you a different from being your brother, there is no reason why you shouldn't write him a nice little note congratulating him on getting away to college and asking him to write. Don't pay too much attention to his writing the other cousin and not writing to you. Things like that often have no real significance and while we don't understand them, they are really not worth worrying about and if you are a little patient I think it would turn out right for you.

Love's Triangle Again

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a girl of 21 and am very much in love with a boy of 22. He works near me every noon and every time he passes he waves to me. My best friend is in love with him too and she is more familiar with him than I am, and I am very jealous. I do not want to hurt my friend, but I love this boy. Would you please advise me what to do?

HELEN

Dear Helen—I advise you to sit right and watch which way the cat jumps. In other words, the boy will choose the girl he prefers—and neither of other will be the kind of ladies to the liking of either. Don't take the chance of the possibility of being cut. Look up a couple of other friends. Perhaps an apparent withdrawal of your interest will fill him so full of curiosity and admiration that straightaway want to play in your back yard. There's nothing like a little competition, no matter how poor.

A Junior Prom Dilemma

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Mine is a problem which confronts many of the schoolgirls of today. I am a junior in high school and expect to go to the annual prom. This is problem: I feel that I will receive a bid from a boy who pays considerable attention to me, but I hardly like him enough to go. Can I refuse this young man and yet not offend him? I am sure some one else much better will ask me. How can I answer him, as I have the first boy, asks me to go?

DOUBT

My dear girl, don't you mind asking me how to tell a fib for you are a truthful and conscientious girl. If the boy you don't want to go with asks you first, and you haven't any "date" in the evening of the previous invitation, what can you say—to be strictly truthful, but yes or no?

However, you might do what a certain poet calls, "taking occasion by the hand." You might try to see the boy you hope is going to invite you and turn the talk to the subject of the prom and see what happens.

Case of Invalid Sweetheart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am madly in love with a very nice girl whom I've known for one year. The Summer she became ill and was found to be a victim of T. B. Although my parents object to my marrying her, I still love her and go to see her often. Shall I continue going with her, or give her up?

UNHAPPY JIM.

It would be unwise to consider marrying a sufferer from tuberculosis by the name of that disease. But in the case of young people, some very remarkable cures have been made. In general, every one possible is being done for your friend in the way of plenty of fresh air, good food and nourishing food. It would be well if you could get in touch with where they make a specialty of treating such diseases. And I don't see any harm in your paying her a friendly visit now and then. Talk to your own doctor, or the girl's doctor, about this.

Please write on one side of paper and do not have letter too long. Sign as name as guarantee of good faith, but not for publication.

Young Folks Have Problems

"Awkward Period" From 12 to 16

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

BOYS AND girls twelve to sixteen years of age have their own problems. They are at a time of life when rapid growth and development produce conditions that demand special attention.

This may be called the "awkward period" of life. The young folks don't know what to do with their long legs. Their growing hands and feet are in the way. There are strange emotions stirring in their hearts.

Dr. Copeland

Sometimes there is a feeling of loneliness, a sense of aloofness, a suspicion that their elders do not understand them. This is the time they need advice, but the young things don't know where to get it. They don't want to be laughed at or scolded. They don't know where to turn.

I get many letters from men and women who write to me because, they say, I am a sort of impersonal individual. They would not like the family doctor with the questions they put to me. It is easier to write an outsider, although he is a stranger, but made at least half a friend, perhaps, by reason of his familiar writings.

Well, boys and girls, I am at your disposal. If you have problems, so have a million of other young people. If you will tell me what troubles you, it may help me to assist a multitude of others who are having thoughts and anxieties exactly like yours.

I do wish to say this right now: Because you wonder about life, don't be distressed about it. Many of your strange feelings, probably all of them, are just the same feelings your parents and all the rest of their generation had. Every one of your ancestors went through the same stage. The fact that they became ancestors proves that nothing ill in their affairs can happen to a couple of the symptoms you observe in yourself.

Nothing is more terrible than the fear that you are abnormal. You may wonder sometimes if what you go through is not a sign that you are not normal. It isn't. As a matter of fact, you wouldn't be normal if you didn't have these symptoms. They are really the sure signs of your normal state.

If you write to me, in care of the paper where you read this, the kindly editor will forward the letter to me. But being assured that what you experience just now is what every older person has experienced, may give you the comfort I want you to have.

BROKEN RAINBOWS

night at the Country Club."

They were up on the second floor. A svelte model paraded in the delectable garment.

"You, Wilda, you put it on"

As in a trance, Wilda permitted the cloud-pink garment to be slipped upon her.

"Oo la la!" murmured the mannequin, who was French. "Mademoiselle is quite bew-tee-ful!"

The softly folded draperies swirled Wilda's slim figure enchantingly.

"She the interesting new line" And gee it was. Wilda's young neck and shoulders rose from it like Aphrodite's from the ocean. The skirt trailed upon the floor behind, but in front it was short enough to display a pair of trim ankles.

There were shoes to match, too —of brocade, with pert little four-inch heels.

"Why, Wilda, you're a dream in it! When Logan Townsend sees you in that gown he'll go quite crazy over you."

Of Peach Color

Sports Suit, Too

She bought a sports suit, too, in a ravishing peach color.

"The more masculine a man is the more he likes to see a woman in a shade of pink," didactically announced Coral.

"Mother'll think I've gone plumb nuts."

"Why shouldn't you buy the things you want at the moment when you want 'em most?" demanded Coral.

"The extravagance——"

"Extravagance nothing! I'm not going to stand and see Myrtle Gleeson be the belle of the week-end!"

"Is Logan taking her there?"

"Not that I know of. He's been chummy with the McPhersons for some time. I've seen him twice out at the Country Club with them."

"He'll be surprised to see me, I daresay."

"Well, I only hope you live up to your clothes and flirt to beat the band and make him properly jealous, Wilda!"

"I tell you we're only friends. Good friends. There's no more than that to it, Coral."

"Heh! You can't fool me! And since I've given up my whole lunch hour to rigging you out like the Queen of Sheba you must play the part. And don't you dare go back on it, either, young lady!"

A summer Saturday in Manchester-by-the-Sea. The wide, smooth roads dotted with lines of cars. Patches of woodland painted in floral splashes.

There were briar roses trailing in the green. And gorgloves, rearing their stately purple And crickets humming amid the grass. Birds twittered in the branches.

Wasn't every revolution of the wheels bringing her near Logan Townsend?

How true was that old proverb, "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

The world was fresh today. Spangles, like diamonds, hung upon the leaves. The whole world seemed smiling.

In her peach silk sports suit her usually straight hair boasting a becoming marcel wave beneath the trim little matching hat, she made a charming picture.

"Just wait 'till he sees you!" whispered Coral encouragingly.

That was music in her ears. Her heart was full of the song of birds, as though she had a sixth sense, over everything that day hung an anticipatory shadow.

At the McPhersons a warm welcome awaited her. They were a young couple, happily married, devoted to each other.

And some of their own abundance of happiness flowed over to their guests.

The McPhersons weren't selfish in their joy. They revelled in filling their big and rambling house with friends, and the friends of friends of friends. They were very hospitable.

Moreover, they were genuinely pleased to see Wilda.

"You two girls don't mind sharing the same room, do you?" asked the hostess.

She and her suitcase were escorted up a wide and shallow staircase with Coral.

"Heavens! Isn't it too beautiful? Logan'll serenade you!"

Coral took a couple of dancing steps out to a veranda overlooking the ocean.

Vines clambered up the wooden posts and curled over the wooden railings. A perky little briar rose had got entangled with the green and turned a blushing, smiling little face upon them.

"Romeo's balcony! What ho! Say, Wilda, do you think Logan'll serenade you?"

"Oh, hush! That's his voice below, Coral, he'll surely hear you."

"Tush! What of that? I'll wager he's all on the qui vive now, waiting for you."

And Coral skipped back into the room, unlocked her suitcase and hung up a couple of frocks in a wide and roomy clothes closet.

Wilda, in this enchanting moment of arrival, couldn't tear herself from the sound of—was it Logan's voice?—from the blue glimpse of the ocean.

"Hi, you! Stop that mooning there! Come on in!"

Coral was at the looking glass busily fixing her complexion.

But Wilda lingered on the balcony, feeling—in her new little sports suit and her marcel wave—like a very modern Juliet.

And at that psychological moment from below came a hail in stirring masculine tones

"Wilda! By all that lucky!! Please come down here!"

It was Logan who stood there vibrant and upstanding in his tweed plus fours.

Wilda pink and pretty as the hat she wore, leaned over the balcony.

"What's happened in the sacred game of golf? Why art thou here so early?"

Tea on Porch

Had Gay Time

"Because, mayhap, a little bird informed me you'd be here." He was gay and laughing and insouciant.

"No kidding?"

"Cross my heart, Lean over—further! You look like history, Lady Juliet at this moment."

Gaily she plucked the briar rose and flung it down to him.

He caught it, fastened it in the lapel of his coat. The sun glinted on his auburn hair. She thought, breath catching: "Oh, there's no one like him!"

It was a whirl of happiness, that week-end party. Like a flood of love streaming into her, sweeping her and Logan together.

It was as though the fates were working entirely in her favor.

What mattered, though, Myrtle was coming on the morrow?

Myrtle seemed very far away today. A creature that had neither blood nor reality.

This was their gorgeous day of June. Logan and she would revel in it.

The host and hostess, being Soccer fans, cheered claimed—for a real tea, with muffins and sugar cakes—was served on the porch immediately after the arrival of Coral and Wilda.

Oh, it was gay out there! There was the clink of cups—young, hearty appetites—much talk and laughter.

What happened to Wilda a the week-end party is told in tomorrow's Book Section.

Determined Love-Making

May Become "Pig-Headedness"

By HELEN ROWLAND

IT IS getting so, that an ounce of love-making is worth a pound of practice.

Sometimes, the dogged persistence which succeeds in winning a woman's love, before marriage, turns into the pig-headedness which kills it, after marriage.

Every modern bridegroom should have a little hope chest all his own. He'll need a thimble and thread, a lot of bachelors' buttons, and a few aprons to wear when wiping the dishes.

If you find it hard to wax romantic about the Boy Friend in his new derby hat, just remember that your grandmother loved your grandfather, in spite of a full beard, suspenders and red flannels. Love is like that!

One reason why honeymoons always end, is that the average man can see no more sense in keeping up the role of Romeo, after marriage, than a small boy can see in "being good," after Christmas.

An "old fashioned girl" is one who would rather get her hair rumpled and her dress wrinkled hanging over a gas-range for a young and attractive husband than get her marcel spoiled and her rouge rubbed off trying to gold-dig a middle aged playboy. And, happily, most girls are old-fashioned!

Even when it comes to inanimate things, like a mirror or the bathroom scales, a woman prefers those that soften the truth, and are more flattering than dependable.

The fine art of coquetry consists in knowing how to "lean on" a man, without making him feel TIRED.

When love dies, a woman likes to give it a beautiful burial; but a man always spoils it by bringing the "next women" to the funeral.

Financial Men Are Lukewarm Over Message

Want Prompt Revision of Trust Laws, Abolition of Capital Tax

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Dec. 5—The financial world gives a lukewarm reception to President Hoover's message. Business leaders regard the message as good in spots.

B. C. Forbes

It has been evident hopes that the President would present more practical modification of our antiquated anti-trust laws. Instead, he favors one more forlorn investigation. As of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the anti-trust laws are not known already.

The abolishment of the estate tax, which has been urged as necessary to encourage the revival of enterprise would be to reenact the Mellon Tax Law. It would fit modern conditions. It is utterly absurd to keep on the statute book an act which every thoughtful citizen, from the President down, frankly recognizes as a stumbling block to the achieving of things universally regarded as extremely desirable in the interests alike of industry, business, employment and the nation.

The delay endorsed by President Hoover means that this obstacle to economic rehabilitation will not be removed in time to permit of speedy up-turn recovery.

Some of the other measures recommended for prompt legislative action are of infinitesimal importance compared with modernizing our trust laws.

R. W. McNeel

The most heartening financial recommendation made by President Hoover is that the capital-gains tax be reconsidered with a view to its abolition. The President's exact words are:

CAPITAL-GAINS TAX

"It is urged by many thoughtful citizens that the removal of the income tax on so-called capital gains at the present rate is to encourage speculative inflation and likewise impede business recovery. I believe to be the contrary. I recommend a study be made of the economic effects of this tax and of its relation to the general structure of our income tax law."

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank, New York, broadly, this subject has not received the consideration it ever has. His outspokenness aroused wide-spread interest. Those who have large capitalities know that the lessening of a tax on property would be encouraged many to take advantage of the boom prices of last year. A process can be declared from income there has been much selling this year to take advantage thereof. A most unhappy arrangement.

Mr. Mitchell's bank in a special circular issued in April of last year urged:

"Immediate action by Congress to remove the income tax on capital gains on the sale of securities, and at the same time of course eliminate the tax credit resulting from capital losses. This tax, we believe, has created artificially in the security markets in the credit structure and in interest rates. It has introduced a scarcity value in stocks that have spelled high prices and it has created an enormous increase in the loan account.

"Under these tax laws, and particularly with the present spending as it does in the higher brackets, investors and speculators who have large profits in securities have been and are unwilling to liquidate and take profits, but go on holding these securities, relying on the banks in order to do so.

"Many stocks have increased in value in no small part because holders are unwilling to sell and pay the tax liabilities incurred, even though prices may have gone to excessive levels. Prospective buyers are therefore forced to pay higher prices in reason of this tax."

Mr. McNeel, president of the [illegible]

R. W. McNeel

Mr. McNeel, in the light of present financial history, finds this proposal not to be favored than real estate, and gave two reasons for the suppression of a wider [illegible] of the taxation [illegible] when pointed by the writer, said: "Who want to know if I would favor the removal of [illegible] and [illegible] real estate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

NEW DECLINES IN STOCKS ARE CHECKED

New York, Dec. 5—In its third day of moderate declines, the stock market settled on a stabilized position of buying orders today. It closed with some of the more active issues a little higher.

The market sagged substantially during the morning, as trading quickened a little. It turned very dull by early afternoon, and recovered steadily during the late trading. The day's sales again aggregated 1,650,000 shares.

TELEPHONE HIGHER.

General Electric, American Telephone, Loew's, Atchison, Electric Auto Lite, and United Aircraft closed about a point higher.

Allied Chemical and Johns Manville were up about 2 points.

U. S. S., after sagging 2 points, closed with a loss of only ½ point.

Eastman dropped 6 points, then rallied nearly. Firestone preferred recovered 3 of a 5-point loss.

Bethlehem Steel, American Can, and Westinghouse closed about steady. Some of the higher railroad rails failed to recover, however, and Louisville & Nashville, Atchison and Texas Pacific lost 2½ to 5 points.

BEARS ARE NERVOUS

The forenoon saw the bears growing nervous, and covering a few feelers here and there. They were apparently anxious to test the bottom levels reached November 10, although the lack of extensive support and the way in which stocks have been taken on small declines have offered them scant encouragement.

Wall Street was inclined to make something of a mystery of the recent conferences of prominent leaders in finance on both sides of the Atlantic. Gov. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and Owen D. Young, recently returned from abroad, met with Eugene Meyer, newly appointed governor of the reserve board in Washington at the reserve bank yesterday.

Called at the bank at the same time was J. P. Morgan, also just back from Europe. While not inclined to look for some constructive development in the international situation, he was disposed to be very much in the dark about it all.

The overnight news was again of neutral influence. The brokers' loan figure, showing a further small reduction, was about in keeping with expectations.

Report of Goodyear Corporation for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1930, makes pleasant reading, showing a gain of 31 per cent in net earnings after heavy charge-offs and a year when most companies are showing substantial reduction in net profits. Keiynator reported net profits of $4,601,016 after all charges.

Accident Policy Covers All Ways of Injury

By Frank F. Loomis

health insurance protects present earnings.

Your earnings maintain you and your family and your entire financial situation depends on your ability to earn. You insure your possessions against fire—however, if such possessions were destroyed, you could replace them with future earnings—provided your power to make money was not impaired.

Health and accident insurance will guarantee your earning ability against accident or illness, no matter how long the disability lasts.

The following figures are interesting, and reveal the necessity for this form of insurance protection.

Some person is accidentally killed every five minutes.

One hundred and thirteen persons are accidentally injured to every fire that occurs.

Over sixteen million persons are disabled by sickness or accident yearly.

One out of every ten deaths is due to accidental injuries.

There is enough illness every year to average nine days per individual.

Three million persons are seriously ill all the time.

One man in every six is accidentally injured every year.

Ninety-nine persons are disabled by accident or illness to every one that dies.

It is estimated that there are about 12,000,000 accidents yearly in this country, fatal, serious or otherwise. Statistics from one of the largest companies in the United States today, who are employed in business. In 1921, statistics showed there were thirty-four million adults employed in occupations for wages or salaries.

That number has increased at the rate of one million persons a year or a total of ten million in the past ten years.

Earning power being their most essential asset, it is necessary for every person dependent on earned income to protect it with insurance. Just as life insurance creates an estate for the future, accident and health insurance, writing accident insurance, show that 31 per cent of all accidents occur from automobiles and that for every person killed, as a result of an automobile accident, nearly 100 are injured.

It is a safe prediction that 30,000 persons will be killed by automobiles alone during the year 1930.

One of the most modern accident policies, recently put on the market, pays in case of loss of life by accident, $20,000 and for loss of both hands or both feet, $20,000; for loss of one hand and one foot, $20,000; entire sight of both eyes, $20,000; either hand or foot, and one eye, $20,000; either hand or foot, $10,000; entire sight of one eye, $6667; thumb and index finger of either hand $5000

The weekly indemnity for total disability, as long as the insured lives and suffers from such disability from any accident the sum of $100 a week is paid and for partial disability, $40 a week for 26 weeks.

Double all the above amounts are paid provided the accident occurs on a so-called common carrier, or a fare-paying vehicle.

Most accident policies pay a stipulated sum for surgical fees, nurses' fees, hospital bills, etc., but this contract pays whatever these bills may be up to $2000, and this is paid in addition to the weekly indemnity.

The cost of the policy is $95 a year and no medical examination is required.

Hearst Radio Service and CBS to Present Notre Dame-So. California Game

The fact that it takes the sun three hours to travel 3000 miles from the Atlantic to the Pacific will afford the radio audience an opportunity to listen in on two big football games on the CBS and NBC networks tomorrow. From 1:45 until approximately 7:30 the two chains will carry the Navy-Pennsylvania game and the Notre Dame-Southern California classic.

Over the CBS chain, including WNAC, Ted Husing will give a play-by-play description of the Navy-Pennsylvania game which starts at 1:45 at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Graham McNamee will describe this game for NBC, heard locally over WEEI, and Arthur P. McNulty will assist him.

By the time the game is over the afternoon will just be getting underway on the west coast, and at 4:45 p. m. E. S. T., both Columbia and National will carry the broadcast of the Notre Dame-Southern California tilt. Radio Service has been drafted by Columbia to present a word picture of the game. Smith has been selected the best of the western announcers, especially in the describing of football games. His work at the microphone has been praised from all sections of the country and lead many former football stars to declare him one of the three best in the country.

In addition the Hearst Radio Service has arranged several unique stunts for the half time, among them being the appearance before the microphone of "Pop" Warner of Stanford and "Tad" Jones of Yale. They will give their impressions of the game and their opinions of the teams.

More than 90,000 are expected to attend this game, which will be broadcast in the New York area over WABC.

RADIO Personalities

Director LEONARD JOY frankly states that he plays "Civil War" records to get fit back in 65 . . . CHARLES TRAMONT, NBC announcer, was only a stack boy in a Buffalo library when he eloped with the librarian. He left the city with 2c and 2 street car cits . . . Finding 8 new songs a week for his 2 NBC programs keeps RAY PERKINS busy calling on music publishers. In a pinch when the publishers have nothing suitable to offer, Ray sits down and writes himself a new song or two. And they are good . . . CHARLES R. HECTOR, WNAC headliner, studied medicine for 3 yrs., played with the Philharmonic for 3 more and then turned to opera for the next 3. . . . The next toured South Africa with his own orchestra, and now he is in his 3rd year with WNAC. . . . The three Little Sachs" of CBS are all over 6 ft. tall . . . Announcers and artists of CBS are forbidden to touch the mikes . . . Pullman cars serve as home these days to the REVELERS. The quartet is filling engagements in the Middle West without canceling their Mon. and Wed. weekly N. Y. radio broadcasts. PIERRE BRUGNON, M C. does not mean Maurice Chevalier but Master of Ceremonies. Pierre, CBS singer sounds and looks like the French "It-Man."

Personable Ted

TED WEEMS returned to the air last evening with his orchestra in the first of a series of Thursday night programs over the Columbia Network, coming through locally over WNAC.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Here is a thought in relation to radio reception which seems to us of sufficient importance to bring to your attention. As a matter of fact, the more we dwell upon the idea the more it impresses us as a subject well worth close study. It is that of acoustics in the room of your home where you listen to programs coming through your loud speaker.

According to the manufacturers of radio receiving sets these instruments have been brought to about as near a state of perfection as is possible; science can do very little more to make radio reception perfect, insofar as the mechanism of the set is concerned. And it seems to us that it would not be a bad idea to pay a little attention to acoustics in the home.

We all know that when our modern temples of amusements are constructed—we refer to the movies—experts on acoustical properties are one of the most important factors in their erection. No matter how beautiful the theater, or how excellent the entertainment offerings, the project is doomed to be a financial flop if the acoustics are neglected.

Why is is not logical that at least a little attention be given to the room in our home where we receive entertainment from the ether? It is a fact that many persons residing these lines, although possessing sets which they are confident is a perfectly functioning radio set, know they are not getting the kind of reception they should, and, try as they may, cannot put their finger on the difficulty. We repeat, it is possibly an acoustical trouble.

Regardless of the pall of gloom which so many business concerns seem to delight to wade through during this momentous era, the radio interests are holding their heads high above the depressing fog The Radio Manufacturers Association broadcast the cheerful prediction that between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 in sales of new radio receiving sets, tubes and other products will be diverted into business channels this current month.

Tonight at 8:30, over WLOE, Honorable Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Senate, will speak in behalf of the New England Kurn Hattin Homes, located at Westminster, Vt. These homes care for children whose families have been broken, either through poverty sickness or death, and provide a good family home for homeless and neglected children living within the New England states.

Congress Should Direct Spending of $150,000,000

President Has No Constitutional Right to Usurp Control for His Cabinet

To relieve unemployment, President Hoover recommends that Congress appropriate from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to expedite the building of public works already authorized.

This is a wise and patriotic recommendation.

IT HAS MET WITH NO OPPOSITION IN EITHER HOUSE.

But the Democratic leaders of the House have been quick to oppose Mr. Hoover's extraordinary, undemocratic proposal that Congress abdicate to a Cabinet committee the power to determine the distribution of this large sum.

To Congress and not to the President, the Constitution gives the power to provide for the common defense and the general welfare and definitely the power to control the purse strings of the Government.

MR. HOOVER'S PROPOSAL VIOLATES ONE OF THE MOST FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES OF THE AMERICAN SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT.

Under that American system, the legislative branch is the "policy-determining" as well as the fund-raising and fund-granting organ of the Government.

But Mr. Hoover would change this and give to a committee of his own Cabinet the determination of policy involved in the decision as to what public works shall be expedited and how much shall be expended on each class of work and in each section.

Were Congress to abdicate, as Mr. Hoover requests, he would become the GENERAL MANAGER OF THE GOVERNMENT and Congress would be reduced to the level of a board of directors of a business corporation.

If Mr. Hoover had PROPERLY discharged the responsibility which is PROPERLY his as the framer of the budget, he would have submitted to the Congress with his recommendation A SPECIFIC PROGRAM SHOWING HOW AND WHERE HE WISHED THE EMERGENCY APPROPRIATION TO BE EXPENDED.

Congress never has delegated to the President in time of peace the extraordinary power which Mr. Hoover asks, and never except in war should such a request be granted or even made.

In opposing the method by which Mr. Hoover proposes to go to the relief of the unemployed, the Democratic leaders of the House have the Constitution and the wisdom of experience on their side. They deserve the co-operation of all Senators and Representatives who believe in the Government established by the Constitution.

We are not living in the days of Charles the First of England, who dissolved his Parliament after it had refused him the appropriations he asked. He governed without Parliament for eleven years and came to grief as a result.

We are not living under a European system of government or a Central American dictatorship.

We are living under the GOVERNMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION and the American people have a right to demand that their public affairs shall be ordered AS THE CONSTITUTION PROVIDES.

We Have Prohibition

How Long Will the People Tolerate It?

Prohibition, so-called, is with us, and rules us. It is the LAW of the land and responsible for the LAWLESSNESS of the land, which disgraces this nation.

What prohibition is and does is shown in the two pictures at the top of this page.

The pictures are severe, but they are truthful. Prohibition is fanaticism and hypocrisy. It distributes poisoned alcohol through bootleggers, and even through the Government.

It organizes graft and bribery, on a scale unheard of.

Thanks to prohibition, there are tens of thousands of public officials, police, politicians, all living on a permanent bribery, grafting basis.

And there are a million criminals working in the prohibition vineyard, enriching themselves, collecting yearly an income greater than that of the Federal Government, shooting, killing, bootlegging. AND ALL THIS IS PROHIBITION.

What prohibition does is powerfully illustrated in the picture on the right, with men butchered like sheep.

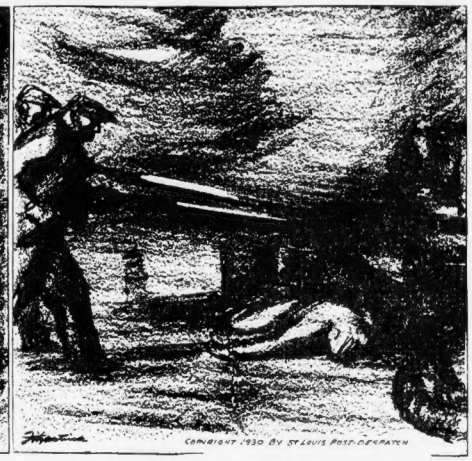
There is nothing imaginary about this picture—it happens every day. This nation has ten times as many murders as any other nation, civilized or uncivilized, on the face of the earth.

In the name of "temperance," which no longer exists in this country, fanaticism has fastened upon the United States a super-government of graft, bribery and crime.

How long will the people tolerate it?

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Here's the ruling power in America—prohibition, with its graft, bribery and poisoned bootleg alcohol.



Here is prohibition's EFFECT—machine gun and sawed-off shotgun at work, dead bodies, racketeering and general crime horror. (SEE EDITORIAL)

SORROW AND ANGER

You have them both in this picture. Poor old General Depression represents sorrow, and plenty of it. His hope is in the Congress, but he doesn't care for that quacking sound. Borah and Norris represent the anger, and theirs is a superior brand.

Everything is quiet along the Potomac and on the front and rear of the Capitol Building just now. BUT WAIT.

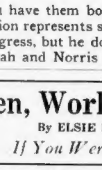
Listen, World!—Prisons

By ELSIE ROBINSON

If You Were a Thief—

THEY'RE BUILDING a gorgeous new prison for New York's women criminals. People, passing, think it's a swagger apartment house and try to engage rooms in advance!

Private rooms—rooms, not cells—for each convict. Hot and cold running water in each room. Recreation halls, gymnasiums, radios, soft mattresses, pipe organ, chapel, splendid hospital, writing desks, electric sewing machines, all the conveniences and comforts of a finely organized modern home.



Elsie Robinson

That's going to make a lot of people mad!

They'll say: "What's the use of being good when bad people are treated like that? Bad people should be punished, not coddled. Coddling like that encourages crime."

Maybe you'll be saying that, too. But suppose you were a thief.

"But I couldn't be a thief!" you exclaim indignantly.

All right. Maybe you couldn't. But just let's pretend you were. Suppose you'd been born as Maggie Jones was born and been up against what Maggie Jones was up against—and the cops had you. Then what? What would be best for you? What would be best for society?

Well, we have been punishing women criminals. Would it be best for us to treat you as we have been treating them?

Would it be best to rob you of all privacy and herd you like an animal with other animals?

Would it be best to surround you with other animals?

Would it be best to surround you with filth and squalor . . . force you to experience nothing but ugliness and hate, day after day?

Would it be best to constantly remind you that you were a thief, to trample your self-respect in the mud, to break all your ideals and wreck your dreams and turn you out—branded?

* * *

That's the conventional treatment of prisoners. You believe in punishment. You say coddling encourages crime. Then such treatment should certainly discourage crime. But does it? It does not. Nine out of ten women who come out branded stay that way. Drift deeper into crime and degeneracy. Is that good for society? Would that be the best way to handle you if you were a thief?

* * *

Or would it be better to show you a new way of living—

A cleaner, more beautiful and orderly way of living—

Would it be better to build a new pride in you, finer ideals—

And give you a chance to make yourself over, from a thief, an outcast and a convict, into a woman?

Which would be better for you and the state?

You believe in "punishment."

Utilities Are Spending

Edison Co. Leads in Expanding

To the credit of the public utilities companies, it can be said that they to a larger extent than any other industry have responded to the needs of the time by providing construction and development projects which supply steady work at reasonable wages.

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, as an example, has arranged expenditures of $1,100,000 now under way or ready to begin within the next few weeks.

Additionally, $2,500,000 is to be spent for a tunnel under the Mystic River from Everett to Scollay Square, for the conduit at Woburn and for expansion of the plant at Kneeland Street in this city. These projects will be undertaken and completed during the coming year, now at our front door awaiting entrance.

Any implication that it was the Edison which has been propagandizing the consumers of Somerville against public regulation of utilities and holding corporations should be withdrawn. It was the gas interests which tucked the six columns of propaganda into the envelopes which contained the monthly bills.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—Thoughts while strolling: Nothing makes one feel so superior as early rising. What happened to beauty spots? Someone should write a play that has Ernest Glendenning in it for more than one act. The Ritz-Carlton seems to remain "the" hotel. O. B. Winter, Pauline Lord's husband.

Albert Payson Terhune, a Newark, N. J., boy, who made good in the city. What became of those jimmy-pipe ads, thank goodness. The old studio where Mabel Normand as Muriel Fortescue was a Biograph star. Dr. Hugo Riesenfield, who isn't a doctor of anything—but an orchestra leader.

Overheard: "She was as close to me as the inside of my pocket, but turned out a rat." The blind man who sells pocket dictionaries and will define any word in it—or you get one free. What became of vaudeville's La Belle Titcomb and her beautiful white horse? W. C. Lengel.

Strutting old roues full of mental ravishings. Frank G. Shattuck, who directs the Schrafft places. A silent movie theatre for the deaf would pay. It was this column that predicted the success of a news reel theater eight years ago. And a stock boom last July.

Joe Leblang's jutting smile. Nearly always an upside down N. in Times electric news flashes. The Winthrop, where Floyd Gibbons stops. Beggars do not plead for a dime any more—they demand it. Who remembers when the youngest child had to wave a shoo-fly over the dinner table?

The grinning, garrulous colored starter in front of Reuben's and his greeting: "Reuben's—That's All." The row of flossy art galleries on East 57th. Monta Bell's overcoat suggests an explosion in a dye factory. Frederick J. Smith, of the New Movie magazine.

The coat of armor in the Vanderbilt hall entrance. Will Hays breezing along. The fellow who sends me a daily anonymous post-card has missed for ten days. And it has been going on for two years. Wonder if everybody else is fed up on those "It's the tomboy in me!" stories?

Broadway souvenir shops, despite thousands of tourists every day, cannot exist on souvenir profits alone. All must augment sales with magic tricks, cut rate tickets and the like, to survive.

In an adjoining booth in a cafe a disillusioned Romeo was speaking his troubled mind.

"It is no use to go on," he said. "When I go home I get hell from her and when with you, you are always crying for something I cannot buy."

I dawdled over my java for a good look when they departed. She was a frumpy woman, past 40, with hennaed hair and thick eyeglasses. He had a sorry, freckled face, weak, watery eyes, and a wispy mustache. I was disillusioned, too.

Somehow I got a chuckle out of what was not intended as an amusing sentence in a British novel. It read:

"He was a conservative who despised new-fangled nonsense and was killed in a one-way street."

So many callers lately are at grips with misfortune that a pleasant visitor today was a young lady seeking typing to do at home.

"I've been bounced from a dozen jobs the past year," she said, "and own a mess of room rent, but I still think life is pretty grand. The only time I think of her river it is coupled with a canoe, moonlight and the boy friend."

In one of the current plays the term for a dog's mother is an applied epithet exactly 12 times among a trio of Broadway demimondes. The word lately has lost all its venomous implication and taken on a sort of reverence. Chorus girls frequently tack it on to their greeting: "Hello, mother!"

In the same play a chorine gold digger tells of the offer of an engagement in Australia and sudden exclaims:

"But who do I know in Australia?"

A five-minute-ago telegram from a magazine implores:

"We need 15 more lines and must have them at once."

Well, here's one on account!
